Regular Republicans Cajole Western Insurgents Back to Ranks

BORAH IS PEACEMAKER

Party Regrets Action to Read Radicals Out of Ranks in 1924

Washington—Although hardly two years have elapsed since some of the younger members of the senate, flushed with the Republican landslide of 1924, tried to read out of the party some of the western Republicans, they have discovered already the error of their way.

For today the so-called western radicals are being caajoed into the ranks of regular Republicans so that the regulars may organize the senate and assign committees. Mr. Borah himself has never been read out of the party though he has held just as extreme views on many questions as his western colleagues. He is therefore the logical peacemaker. The independent group in the senate can lose nothing by conforming to tradition in the use of party labels for organization purposes.

DIFFERENCES IN PARTY

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, and Senator Frazier of North Dakota, have very little if anything in common with the eastern Republicans. Their economic doctrines are too radical even for a larger number of Democrats. Yet their claim to the name Republican has been persistent on the ground that in the primaries they hold a majority of the votes cast by those enrolled as Republicans. At the same time that the younger members of the senate tried to expel from the party some of these western radicals, the older heads in the regular Republican party in the senate had no right to get behind the will of the people as expressed in the sovereign states. It was also suggested at the time that the pendulum might swing the other way and the help of the insurgent Republicans might be needed for organization purposes. And that is exactly what would happen.

For practical purposes the maneuvers whereby all the western Republicans stay regular for a sufficiently long time to permit the organization of committees in conformity with the senatorial principle is of relatively little significance. The trend of senatorial action will be developed both in the December session of this year and next year by a system of fluctuating coalition. Sometimes for political reasons the Democrats will join the insurgents and dominate the senate while on other occasions the conservative elements of the two principal parties will rule the day on taxation and the use of public funds for farm relief.

THREE KILLED IN EXPLOSION IN COAL MINE

Two Miners and Boy Meet Death in Gas Blast in West Virginia

Moundsville, W. Va.—(AP)—Two miners and a boy met death, two others were seriously injured, and two of their comrades were entombed by a gas explosion early Monday in the first mine of the Glendale Gas Coal Co. Eleven workmen escaped, the blast which occurred in the south entry, about a quarter of a mile from the shaft. They were brought to the surface in the mine cage four hours after the explosion, apparently none the worse for their experience.

Rescue crews were searching for two men and held out some hope they would be found alive.

The force of the blast was so great that it was felt in all sections of the workings. The three who were killed reported to have been working a short distance from the point where the explosion occurred.

Rescue crews from nearby mines were summoned immediately after the blast and began the task of digging their way toward the entombed men.

FAIL TO IDENTIFY THREE AS ROBBERS

Trio Arrested as d'Autremont Brothers Are Not Men Wanted

Park Falls—(AP)—Attempts to identify three men held as the three d'Autremont brothers wanted for the dynamiting and robbery of a Southern Pacific train in Oregon failed Sunday.

Police announced Sunday night that messages from Taylor, Mont., claimed by three prisoners as their home are awaited to complete their alibis before release is granted, however.

Arrested at a logging camp where they worked a week after shipment from Minneapolis, the three men held gave their names as Russell Miller, Horace Fezell and Edwin Stevenson. Comparison of their faces with circulars containing the pictures of the d'Autremont brothers Roy, Ray and Hugh, led to their arrest on suspicion. The d'Autremonts are wanted on charges of dynamiting a Southern Pacific train near Ashland, Ore., killing three members of the train crew and a mail clerk, and then looting the train of an unknown amount of money.

PASTOR LEAVES HIS CHURCH TO "PREACH" TO JEW AND GENTILE

San Francisco—(AP)—Dr. James L. Gordon, pastor of the wealthy First Congregational Church of San Francisco, is quitting his pulpit to "preach."

His reason is set forth in an article written by himself in the December number of Sunset magazine, in which he declares he will organize a "metropolitan church" in some suitable American city and will preach to Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Oriental alike.

"Nobody will be asked to 'believe' anything or to 'subscribe' to any creed or to 'join' any organization," says the article.

"I would rather to preach to 3,000 on a small salary than devote my time to 300 semi-seasoned saints, even though they could support me in luxury."

MUSSOLINI SAYS CRITICS OFTEN MISJUDGE FACISTS

London—(AP)—A special message from Premier Mussolini of Italy, in which the duke says "the Fascist is often misjudged by superficial criticism," is printed by the Daily Mail Monday.

"It is the most complete modern form of government," the message adds, "owing to the fact that its roots are deep into the working masses of the nation. Fascism stands for justice, wealth, peace and order."

DATE CHANGED AT REQUEST OF HER SUBJECTS

King Ferdinand Asks Return of Royal Consort for Christmas Day

Chicago—(AP)—Christmas day will find Queen Marie under her own roof-tree in Bucharest instead of on the bleak Atlantic. At the request of King Ferdinand of Roumania, his royal consort has cancelled a portion of her American trip so that she and her children, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas, may be with their own people on Dec. 25.

They will sail from New York Dec. 11, instead of Dec. 24 as originally planned. Part of the contemplated southern trip will be abandoned to meet the earlier sailing date.

"Her majesty received word from his majesty that he wanted to have her home for Christmas," explained a member of the royal entourage. "He said, too, that the people throughout Roumania were so anxious for their beloved queen to be back at the holiday season."

OREY'S PEOPLE'S WISHES

"And her Majesty was touched and wants to obey the wishes of her people." Incidentally, the new plan will make it possible for Princess Ileana to celebrate her eighteenth birthday in her homeland. The princess comes of age Christmas eve.

The same cable that brought the king's request to Queen Marie, also detailed the sovereign's speech in opening parliament in Bucharest, in which he referred to the imposing manifestations which have marked the queen's visit to America with great gratification. Roumania, he said, never has stood so well in her relations with foreign countries and the situation at home was improving steadily.

SANTA CLAUS ASKED TO TELL APPLETON BOYS HE IS COMING

Santa Claus, Cringle Valley By Dog Sleed from Nome, Alaska

Dear Santa:

The children in and about Appleton have been talking more and more about you with the approach of Christmas. All of us are looking forward anxiously to your coming visit. But some of the older boys and girls are saying that there is no Santa Claus. We want to tell you their names because we want you to be good to them, too, but we would like to have you write us a letter so we can tell our Appleton boys and girls and grown-ups too that Santa Claus is as active as ever and that he is planning and working so that we may all receive many nice things this year.

So will you answer our letter? Tell us how things are way up north. Tell us how your reindeer are behaving and whether the Eskimos help you in making toys. We hope you will reply so we can publish your letter so all readers may have the pleasure of receiving a direct message from Santa Claus.

Sincerely yours,
The Appleton Post-Crescent

Saturday we published a letter received from John Wilson inquiring as to whether there is a Santa Claus. It happened that we had assigned a reporter to this question about a month ago. The first thing he did was to write a letter to Santa Claus himself and that letter is shown above.

"Will we get a reply? Who knows? Of course it takes a long time for a letter to go way up north to Cringle Valley, especially when it has to be carried by dog sleed from Nome, Alaska. The first thing he did was to write a letter to Santa Claus himself and that letter is shown above."

By consulting with Postmaster Zuehlke, however, we figure that if Santa took two days in which to reply to our letter, because he must be exceedingly busy now just a month before Christmas, we ought to have his reply today or tomorrow.

So watch tomorrow's paper to see if anything develops. We promise to let you know as soon as his letter is received—if it comes.

HE HOLDS A BRIEF FOR PURCHASES ON INSTALLMENT PLAN

Chicago—(AP)—Evidence to show that installment plan buying is far less uneconomic than it has been often painted was contained Monday in a report prepared for the National Automotive finance conference here by Milan V. Ayres, Chicago analyst, formerly in the wartime statistical division of the government. Mr. Ayres investigated installment buying for American banks.

"The total increase in installment buying," he reported, "between 1923 and 1925 was only 8 per cent while savings deposits increased 17 per cent. The total installment debt, including real estate is only 11 per cent of the national income, estimated at $77,000,000,000. The merchandise installment debt is only 4 per cent of the national income. No material amount of installment payments will be defaulted in hard times."

EDISON DIPS INTO THE FUTURE FAR AS HUMAN EYE CAN SEE

New York—(AP)—Speed and noise will characterize the city of tomorrow, as visualized by Thomas A. Edison, in an interview in the current issue of the Forum.

He forecasts the use of helicopters, able to rise vertically from the roofs of buildings, restriction of skyscrapers to avoid traffic congestion and employment of mathematics instead of policemen to solve traffic problems as means of time saving.

The noise in the huge and complex cities of the future will be tremendously greater than today, he believes, but nature will protect man's eardrums against the din by slightly deafening him.

Crime and taxes he believes, will decrease to an astonishingly low point with the advent of scientific policemen and government by experts.

RUSS JEWELS MAY BE SOLD TO AMERICANS

Russians in New York Attempt to Get Possession of Crown Gems

New York—(AP)—Report has it that a group of Russians here has been organized to attempt to obtain by legal procedure jewels of the former imperial household in Russia, which Norman C. Weiss, a jeweler is bringing from Moscow to sell. Anti-Soviet Russians desire to obtain control of these jewels, which are valued at a fabulous sum, to satisfy claims against red Russia.

The jewels run the gamut from the famous nuptial crown of Katherine the Great, which contains 1520 diamonds and is valued at $52,000,000, to a baby's rattle of solid gold and ivory upon which the late Czar Nicholas cut his teeth. Rudolph Oblat, a New York jeweler and partner of Mr. Weiss, said he had not yet been informed of his partner's Russian scheme, but said it was probably effected last week in Moscow.

VARIETY OF JEWELS

Included in the purchase is the historic diamond-studded three-edged sword of the "mad monarch," a Paul I. Also in the consignment is a hat of pure gold, set with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, intended for the head of "Mad Paul's" pet monkey. Two thousand diamonds are embedded in a gold snuffbox used by Empress Elizabeth, daughter of Peter the Great.

Advices from Moscow to the Associated Press say all the gems bought by Mr. Weiss will be placed on sale in the American market. There still remain in the Soviet government vaults in excess of $200,000,000 worth of imperial jewels which are to be turned into cash for pivots, machinery, locomotives and other practical needs.

FORMER IOWA SENATOR DIES OF HEART DISEASE

Des Moines, Ia.—(AP)—Lafayette Young, editor of the Des Moines Daily Capital and a former United States senator from Iowa, died here Monday from heart disease. Death came peacefully to the veteran editor and publisher about 11 o'clock in the morning at a bath parlor.

Senator Young was at his office for a time Monday morning. He had been under the observation of physicians for several weeks, but had seemed to be improving. He had not been in the best of health, however, for some time.

ENGLISH PROFESSOR AT MARQUETTE DIES SUNDAY

PASTOR COULDN'T FIND BIBLE IN OMAHA, CLAIM

Omaha, Neb.—(AP)—John L. Jones, who claims to be an ordained minister of the Methodist church, says he is going to designate Omaha the Bibleless city when he gets back home to Kansas City. He could not get a Bible for a funeral service Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Jones preached a Sunday sermon before the few remaining delegates to the national "hobo" convention that was in session here last week, but when he attempted a funeral service for an Omaha laborer who joined the organization during the convention, he was forced through inability to obtain a Bible to give it up. The Kansas City delegate said he personally called at 49 places in his attempts to obtain a Bible.

Albuquerque, N. M.—(AP)—Santa Fe Continental passenger train No. 22, eastbound, was wrecked 31 miles west of Gallup, N. M., Sunday night, according to a report received by the Journal Monday morning. REVOLT RUMOR IN MEXICO IS HEARD AGAIN

Nine Rebels Are Shot in Chihuahua; Report Villa Band in Arms

El Paso, Texas—(AP)—Plans for a revolutionary movement in northern Mexico are believed to have been partially revealed by the reported slaying of nine rebels by federal troops in the state of Chihuahua.

Rumors that General Nicholas Fernandez, former chief of staff for General Francisco (Pancho) Villa, was one of the leaders of the proposed revolution have been denied by General Ramon Lopez, commander of the Mexican federal garrison here. The reports credited General Fernandez with leading a small detachment of heavily armed men into Mexico Nov. 1. This, it is said, was part of a scheme to mobilize thousands of Villa's followers.

NINE KILLED SUNDAY

General Lopez admitted that detachments had been ordered to search for the rebel band. Sunday night, he declared, nine of the band had been killed according to unofficial reports. Shooting of two Mexicans, held on charges of transporting munitions to rebel factions when they attempted to escape last week from federal troops, was the first indication of extensive investigation of rumors of a revolt.

General Lopez scouted reports that the rebels were planning a surprise attack on Juarez. Possibility that the rebels were planning to join the Yaqui Indian uprising in Sonora, was seen by General Lopez.

CLERGY COMMENTS ON DUKE'S DECREE

Church Head Is Amazed at Catholic Action to Annul Marriage

New York—(AP)—The authorities of the Protestant Episcopal church and society were stirred Monday by further revelations regarding the annulment of the Catholic church of the Episcopal marriage of the duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York.

Bishop William Manning, head of the Episcopal diocese of New York, thinks the annulment "amazing and incredible." The marriage was annulled by a decree of the diocesan court at Southwark, England, which was upheld by the tribunal of the Rota in Rome.

An announcement that annulment was granted on a plea of the former duchess has added to the stir. She divorced the duke several years ago and now is the wife of Col. Jacques Balsan of France.

MAYOR AND GOVERNOR DON'T AGREE; MURDERS CONTINUE

Herrin, Ill.—(AP)—Attempts to determine the identity of gunmen who claimed another victim Saturday night occupied the time of Williamson-con officials Monday, while Mayor Marshall McCormack and Governor Len Small continued at variance as to the best method of curbing the gang situation in this territory.

The latest victim was Claude Craig, 33, a coal miner, whose body was found early Monday near a roadhouse on the outskirts of town operated by a man known as "Big Swede". Craig's body had been pierced by both buckshot and revolver bullets. Authorities believe the coal miner did not come to his death by the Birger or sheltan gangs, for he had not been known to associate with either.

The difference of opinion developed after Mayor McCormack made public a letter to the governor in which he declared that the establishment of a military court was the only solution of the gang problem.

Governor Small in reply, asserted that the people of southern Illinois "cannot expect protection until they are prepared to help give protection." He asserted that the murders here would have occurred regardless of the presence of troops.

Hope for ultimate solution of the problem was visioned in the declaration of the governor that 99 per cent of the people in southern Illinois are law-abiding and that the troublemakers come from elsewhere.

TOLD HUSBAND OF AFFECTION FOR MINISTER

Mrs. Mills "Didn't Care Who Knew of Love Affair," Witness Says

H E A R MISTRIAL RUMOR

Expect to Bring Mrs. Gibson to Court on Stretcher Wednesday

Courthouse, Somerville, N. J.—(AP)—Mrs. Elsie Barnhardt, sister of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, slain with the Rev. Edward W. Hall, said in the witness stand Monday that her sister told her that she loved Mr. Hall's little finger more than her husband's whole body. Testifying as a state's witness at the trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, charged with Mrs. Mills' murder, Mrs. Barnhardt said that Mrs. Mills had taken her into her confidence in telling of her love for the rector of the church where Mrs. Mills was a member of the choir.

"Eleanor told me she loved Mr. Hall's little finger more than Jim's whole body," the witness said. "Jim" is James Mills, husband of the slain woman.

HUSBAND HEARD DECLARATION

Late Mrs. Barnhardt added that her sister repeated the statement in the presence of Mills and their two children, Charlotte and Daniel.

"She said it several times," Mrs. Barnhardt testified.

Her sister met her warning that her friendship with the minister was wise with the reply: "I don't care who knows I love Mr. Hall," said the witness. The witness told of the last bench in Buccleugh park as a place, her sister told of meeting the Rev. Mr. Hall and helping him with his sermons.

RUMORS OF MISTRIAL

Robert H. McCarter, of defense counsel in the Hall-Mills case, said Monday that a conversation he was reported as having had with a juror in the case was in fact a conversation the juror had with him. At the opening of court Monday there were rumors that a mistrial might be ordered, that Charlotte Mills had seen Mr. McCarter talking to a juror and that something would be done about it officially.

Mr. McCarter said to the Associated Press: "In the courtroom Saturday morning before court opened, I was sitting at counsel table talking to Mr. Studer one of my associates. Mr. Tilman, one of the jurors, with a court official came up to our table and said he was the juror whose brother had died and that he wanted to speak to one of the presiding judges and asked if we knew where the judges were."

"Both Studer and I expressed regret at his trouble and I said I had not yet seen Justice Parker but that Judge Cleary had just gone out of the room. This was the entire incident and it was overheard by the court official in charge of the jury."

CALL MRS. GIBSON WEDNESDAY

The prosecution plans to have Mrs. Jane Gibson, its "key witness," brought into court Wednesday on a stretcher to give what may be death bed testimony.

The plans, however, are endangered by the possible necessity for an emergency operation to prolog for a short time the life of the only person known to claim to have seen the slaying four years ago of the Rev. Mr. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

An ailment that caused Mrs. Gibson, who is also known as Mrs. Easton, to collapse while attending court ten days ago, is now diagnosed as kidney stones. Her condition was reported to have improved after a blood transfusion Friday but Dr. Charles Kelly, one of the physicians attending her, holds that this apparent improvement is only a natural phase of the disease and it may be reversed very suddenly.

COURT RULES ATTORNEY IS NOT GUILTY

Attorney Allan V. Classon Absolved of Charges Made by Brother

Wausau—(AP)—Attorney Allen V. Classon of Oconto, whose disbarment was sought by his brother former Congressman David G. Classon and two nephews, Monday was absolved of charges of unprofessional conduct in a decision by Circuit Judge A. H. Reid.

Judge Reid, who heard the disbarment action brought against the Oconto attorney by his relatives at Green Bay last week, held the charges that he had sworn falsely were unsubstantiated.

"He has not been guilty of misconduct or violated any of the good ethics of the profession," declared the jurist who recommended that the complaint and charges be dismissed.

The charges were brought by D. G. Classon, also an attorney of Oconto, who represented the Ninth district for six years, and two nephews, George W. Moody and George T. Classon. They filed the action following the recent suit in which Allan Classon won a $13,000 judgment against the men as commission on the sale of the Weyauwega Electric company to the North American Power interests.

St. Paul—(AP)—Seven persons were believed Monday to have been drowned Sunday night when they attempted to escape from a police raid on a houseboat in the Mississippi river here.

The victims were five men and two women, who died in the water when a leaky boat foundered as they fled from the houseboat where an alleged drinking party was in progress.

None of the bodies was recovered. Three of the ten persons who were in the boat were rescued. From them it was learned that those drowned were: Joseph Becker, Charles Randall, owner of the houseboat, Mike Hogan, Joseph Kenaly, Fay Christholm, Mrs. Jane Pothan, and a girl named Harriett.

'LEAGUE OF NATIONS' FLIES U. S. BANNER TO DEFY KU KLUXERS

Port Huron, Mich.—(AP)—A "flag of tolerance" waves Monday from a pole in the yard of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The flag was donated by the Port Huron Ku Klux Klan to the church whose pastor, Dr. Russell H. Bready, has been an open foe of the Klan. The mast from which the flag flies was presented to the church by Jacob S. Goldman, prominent Port Huron Jew. The flag was raised aloft by Archibald Wayner, Negro veteran, and the dedicatory address was made by Monsignor Patrick R. Dungan, a Catholic.

Ten thousand persons gathered for the ceremony Sunday. Despite a warning Dr. Bready received last week that 400 men would be present to "see that the service was never carried out," there was no sign of disorder.

CLERGY COMMENTS ON DUKE'S DECREE

Church Head Is Amazed at Catholic Action to Annul Marriage

New York—(AP)—The authorities of the Protestant Episcopal church and society were stirred Monday by further revelations regarding the annulment of the Catholic church of the Episcopal marriage of the duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York.

Bishop William Manning, head of the Episcopal diocese of New York, thinks the annulment "amazing and incredible." The marriage was annulled by a decree of the diocesan court at Southwark, England, which was upheld by the tribunal of the Rota in Rome.

An announcement that annulment was granted on a plea of the former duchess has added to the stir. She divorced the duke several years ago and now is the wife of Col. Jacques Balsan of France.

"Times is changed," sagely remarks long ago have ceased to function. The ancient who relates the days of his youth when men were and women stayed where they belonged. "Gone are the braves of other days and in their places are these lads with patent leather hair and no gumption whichever."

"And the women!" Barber, shops full of them! Time was when a regular he man could sit and enjoy his kind without all creation listening. The barber shop was the only place, just about, where a man could read a bit of literature and hear a story or two not censored by all the women of his family. But now, a cozy corner in every shop with fancy lamps and cushions and things and women being treated same men. Reading tables loaded with reading no man would look at. FORGERESS AGAIN MAKES ESCAPE FROM WOMAN'S PRISON

Leona Mealy Bell, Sentenced from Here, Breaks Out of Taycheedah

Leona Mealy Bell, the elusive, hard-boiled forger who was sentenced here to two years at the women's reformatory at Taycheedah last January, again has given the slip to her prison guards and police of the middle west have been asked to look for her. This is Miss Bell's second escape from the institution. She was apprehended at Menomonie Falls a few hours after her first flight last spring.

Miss Bell escaped Saturday night from the prison. She slipped out of her second story window by using a bed sheet rope on which she lowered herself to a water pipe on the first floor. She scrambled down the pipe to the ground and escaped. According to prison authorities she wore nothing but her night clothing and was in her bare feet. The fugitive was traced around Taycheedah buildings but her trail was lost at the gate. It is believed she had accomplices in her escape but no trace of them has been found.

Miss Bell was arrested for committing forgeries here in 1925. After mauling a few Appleton people she returned to Chicago where she was arrested. Aided by six lawyers she fought extradition proceedings but the Chicago courts ordered her returned to Appleton where she was sentenced to two years at Taycheedah.

GET OBJECT LESSON IN BRUSH REMOVAL

Following the rains over the week-end the snowdrifts throughout the county, especially on the side roads, have melted and farmers will cut brush this week. The first snow has indicated that unless the brush is cut before the next heavy fall, practically all side roads will be blocked delaying the delivery of mail and also keeping the farmers from coming to the city. The farmers started Monday morning to remove the brush and the weeds.

CHURCH ABLE TO STAND ATTACK, H. N. MEN HEAR

"All through history the Catholic church has successfully fought persecution and she will always continue to do so," the Rev. F. X. Van Nistler of Kimberly, past spiritual advisor of the Green Bay diocesan Holy Name society, said at the monthly meeting of the St. Joseph Holy Name society at 9:15 Sunday morning in St. Joseph hall. More than 400 members attended Holy Communion in a body at 8 o'clock mass and the breakfast which was served before the meeting.

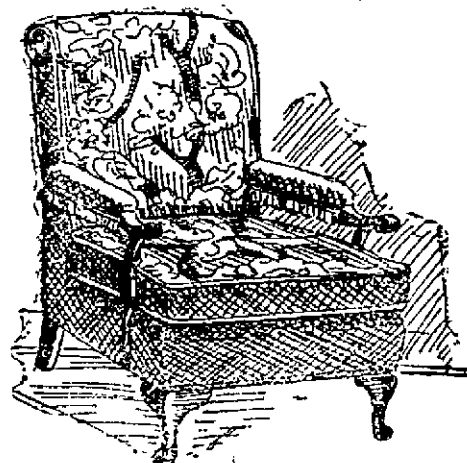

"Every monarch or ruler who has sponsored a persecution against the church, fell, and the same thing will happen to President Calles of Mexico who is responsible for the present situation in that country," Father Van Nistler declared. He gave a history of the Catholic church from its origin to the present time, telling in detail of the various persecutions which the church has survived. The Rev. Pacificus Rath, pastor of St. Joseph church, was appointed chairman of the nominating committee, which will nominate officers for the 1927 term. Other members of the committee are Joseph Weber, Henry Tillman and Frank Groh. Officers will be elected at the annual banquet and meeting in January.

OFFICERS IN ARMY AND NAVY WORRIED ABOUT THEIR JOBS

Supreme Court Decision Gives President Power to "Fire" Them

Washington—Army and navy officers always have thought they had life jobs—including pensioned retirement—if they behaved themselves. Now the proposition is that the president can dismiss them, if he likes without a court-martial, hearing, or even explanation.

This is the interpretation placed by certain legal authorities on the United States supreme court's recent ruling that Congress has a right to say "yes" or "no" when the president makes an appointment, but that the president has the exclusive say-so when somebody is being ousted.

At first the impression prevailed that the army, navy and marine corps weren't affected by the decision, but now the opinion is being arrived at that their personnel are on no different basis from civil presidential appointees.

The army and navy journal which ought to know what it's talking about takes it for granted that the supreme court has made the president's power of dismissal absolute over all branches of the military service.

The president is commander-in-chief of the country's fighting forces. Officers hold their commissions from him. They're appointed just as civilians are appointed—the president nominates them and the Senate approves or rejects his nominations. If the president can chuck a civilian appointee out without consulting the Senate, why not a military man? The constitution draws no such distinction in the latter's favor as it does in favor of the federal judiciary. Thus the reasoning goes.

Army and navy officers are considerably more perturbed even than civil appointees, it appears. Civil appointees always have been accustomed to the vicissitudes of politics. Army and navy officers have regarded their jobs as nonpolitical.

An army or navy officer usually has no other calling. Dismissal generally means his ruin.

Army and navy pay is low. Few officers are able to save much. Naturally enough, army and navy men are upset at the idea of having their futures dependent on what may be the whim of a single individual. A trial by their peers, like a court-martial, they regard with no more alarm than the average man looks at a trial by jury, but the recent supreme court ruling has both branches of the service guessing.

Radio Fans Are Interested In B Battery Eliminators

BY J. E. ROBERTS
Radio Engineer

The radio shows have disclosed considerable interest in B battery eliminators.

Even A battery eliminators are being introduced, and receivers operated directly from the house electric lighting circuit. But greatest progress so far has been made with the plate or B battery eliminator.

For this reason, I shall explain this apparatus so that fans may know what it is, how to operate it, and what to expect of it.

A B eliminator is an apparatus that replaces the dry or storage batteries used heretofore for plate voltages, converting the alternating, 110-volt, 60-cycle current furnished by electric lighting companies to the direct current of varying voltages required for radio receivers.

For good service, only the best type should be bought, one made and guaranteed by a reputable manufacturer.

VARIABLE TYPE BEST

This should be designed for control of the detector and intermediate voltages, for while we knew that the only change in a dry-cell B battery was down, as it was being used up, the fluctuations in the eliminator are up and down. This is because it takes its power from the generator at the powerhouse, which is subjected to fluctuations of "peak loads" and "valleys" according to demands made on the current supply.

Eliminators are economical on receivers of four or more tubes. The more tubes, the more economical it will be, compared with dry batteries.

But one certain kind of current must be available for B eliminators, or they won't work. That is 110-volt, 60-cycle alternating current.

Before installing an eliminator be sure this is the current supplied to your home.

The standard B eliminator will not work on direct current. Also, certain territories are supplied with alternating current, but of the 25-cycle variety, and the use of an eliminator, designed for 60 cycles on a 25-cycle line is disastrous, to say the least.

With these conditions fulfilled, the next big point to consider is that of a "filter" in the apparatus to eliminate the "hum" of the alternating current. It is almost impossible to eliminate all the "hum" of the alternating current, especially with the use of head phones. But B eliminators aren't designed for head-phone reception. They're volume reproducers.

Yet it must be remembered that your receiver has been designed for voltages from the dry or storage batteries known until now. The result of an eliminator's installation, therefore, may be a "squeal" from stray currents, or "choking" of the tubes.

Sometimes the speaker will blast from an excess of B voltage. All these can be corrected by careful adjustment of the eliminator currents to the characteristics of the receiver.

If the loud speaker "blasts," it may be advisable to have a "filter" installed in the line from the set to the speaker. This consists of a resistance of about .25 megohms and a fixed condenser of 2 microfarads, placed between the plate and the positive B terminals and one side of the speaker while the other terminal of the speaker is attached to the negative terminal of the A battery.

SUPERVISORS O. K. CLERK'S PROPOSALS

County Board Votes to Pay Dues to State Board Association

The smallest amount of money involved so far in an appropriation resolution submitted at the fall session of the county board of supervisors was acted upon favorably Saturday when $10 was allowed for payment of dues in the Wisconsin County Boards Association.

Several resolutions adopted by the association in annual convention last June received the official approbation of the Outagamie-co and were duly included in the resolution presented here. Briefly the resolutions approved follow:

That the county clerks and county board chairmen of the state meet in joint convention in the future rather than hold separate annual meetings; that the county supply only an office and no furniture to the income assessor; that steps be taken by the state to provide funds to meet the state promise of $7 weekly aid for tubercular patients in county sanatoriums; that statutes be amended to provide state funds for the state share in widows' aid for dependent children; that the legislature enact stringent laws governing automobile headlights to make night driving safe.

Roger Kahn, Young Jazz Prince, Will Pick His Wife From "Show Girl" Type

BY PAUL HARRISON

New York—The show girl type for a wife!

Looks, brains, but no ritzy airs! This is the decree of the 13-year old crown prince of jazzland, and it is based on observation of all kinds of girls up and down the scale.

Young Roger Wolfe Kahn is looking them over from the pill-box pedestal where he rules with a baton over his sleek syncopators in Broadway's newest, smartest and highest priced dance club.

BORN SOCIAL REGISTERITE

As the son of Otto H. Kahn, millionaire broker and patron of classical art, Roger was born to the purple of social register enrollment. When he was 15, he renounced that formal birthplace to seek a new world of jazz distinction. And he has made them all come around and like it.

"I'm no high flier myself," says this slender master of the revals.

"There's a fascination in night life, a soul in it and a voice all its own. I've seen enough, though, and I'm pretty sick of it—so far as I'm a part of it. But I am trying to put it into my music. I want the writing of music to be my real life."

WON'T MARRY IN 400

"There's no hurry about getting married. You get quite a slant on matrimony from the orchestra stand in a night club. But when I do it won't be one of the four hundred."

Slender, wise, sophisticated, indicates his $5-a-head guests with a "Look at 'em—their brains are in their feet. Take away their money and they'd starve to death."

"Why their idea of a good joke is to ask me to play 'Baby Face.' And I'll last night! Well, it don't bother me; they pay for it."

By-a face you've got such a pretty baby face." The music brings four-score guests very much under the influence of harmony to caper over the mirrored floor, a whirligig of legs, colors and scintillating gowns.

Roger W. Kahn

Intermission, and Roger proceeds to talk about himself. He is neither loquacious nor reticent. He is just a slightly immature youth who finds himself in the spotlights of musical and managerial genius and doesn't know quite what to say.

STARTED WITH VIOLIN

"When I was a kid—that is, when I was 5—the folks started me to studying the violin. I liked it well enough, but I had such a curiosity about other instruments that I didn't get along so very well."

"I never did intend to follow dad's business, though he didn't know it when he was hiring about a dozen music teachers for me. I didn't like business and I didn't like this gosh-awful high society and I didn't care about having lots of money—though I suppose I will have a few millions handed me some day."

"Well, I started writing a lot of pieces. After I'd learned all the instruments there were, I got my first band and a contract to play. Dad and mother were pretty sore about it, but I wouldn't quit."

Nine other dance bands bear the name of Roger Kahn, although he doesn't appear personally with him. They alone are making him moderately wealthy—they netted him $40,000 in the past two years. Besides that, there are royalties on his songs and the profits from his new jazz club.

Small wonder that a sly smile of satisfaction already has stolen across the face of his great financier father!

"But," says Roger, lighting a fresh cigaret from a half-smoked one, "I don't care whether this joint makes any money or not. You see, it's sort of laboratory. For instance, I'm writing a musical comedy and whenever I make up a tune, I try it out on the crowd and can tell whether or not it will go over. One has got to please the crowd, and they are more than 400."

URGE VACCINATION TO STOP DIPHTHERIA

More Than 120 Cases Have Been Reported so Far in November

Madison—(AP)—Diphtheria cases numbering 120 have been reported to the state board of health during the first twelve days of November, it was announced Monday.

Prevention of the disease by immunization vaccination of every child in the state between the ages of six and twelve years was advocated by the board in the announcement.

"Because beginning diphtheria is often mistaken for croup, sore throat or a common cold, the doctor may not called soon enough to do effective work," the announcement continued. "This comparatively new method of conferring diphtheria immunity, now coming into vogue in many communities, comprises the immunization of school children in groups and of smaller children by the home physician."

"The state board of health believes all children between six months and twelve years of age should be immunized. This harmless procedure is so inexpensive, and fraught with such proven results for the protection of the child, that it can be recommended unreservedly for every child in Wisconsin. Its use for more than ten years in some eastern cities has been followed by pronounced reductions in the number of cases. The same achievements can be accomplished with a similar determination against the affliction."

day afternoon, third and fourth grade on Tuesday afternoon and first and second on Wednesday. Material on geography will be distributed by the superintendent. This was received from a school in Illinois which has made a study of the project and compiled the results in mimeographed book form.

CHILDREN PLAYING IN STREETS CAUSE MANY FATALITIES

Most Mishaps Occur in Front of Parent's Homes, Records Show

Statistics compiled recently by police in several cities indicate that the use of public streets as a playground by children under 14 years of age is responsible for more than two-thirds of the fatalities due to automobile accidents where children are involved.

Those between 8 and 9 years old lead the list while those of 4 and 10 follow a close second, the figures reveal.

Especially as winter approaches and driving visibility is correspondingly lowered does the danger increase, it was pointed out by Police Chief George P. Finner.

So far this season, however, Appleton accident records have been remarkably free where automobiles have struck playing children and every effort will be expended to keep the "state clean," police declared.

An interesting phase of the survey brought out that the majority of mishaps to children occur while they are playing in front of their own homes; the next class of accidents is within two blocks and generally the children are hurt within a short distance of schools. The peak hour for street fatalities is between 5 and 7 o'clock in the evening and later during the winter months it moves forward 30 minutes.

TEACHERS DEVISE SAFER MACHINERY

Vocational School Heads Add Protection Equipment in Wood Work

To safeguard men and boys who work in the "cut making and carpentering" department of the Appleton Vocational school James Chadek, supervisor, and Herb Heilig, director of the school have devised a group of extra safeguards to be fitted on electric machines used in wood carving, cutting, designing and shaping.

Although the machines came equipped with safety devices, Mr. Chadek was not satisfied and designed additional protection. It is a rule of the shop never to "allow" a machine to be used unless it has been "completely guarded as to make accidents almost impossible.

Machines which have been fitted with additional guards are the plane, the hand saw and finisher. The new shaper which arrived last week will not be put into service until additional guards have been found to prevent serious accidents.

Former Suffering Seems Like A Dream To This Appleton Lady

Amazing recovery of Mrs. Werner due entirely to Dreco she declares.

Never a day passes now but what some person tells the Dreco Expert at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store of the wonderful good Dreco has done them. Persons suffering from stomach disorders, indigestion, gastritis, deranged kidneys, sluggish liver, blood impurities, rheumatism, catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach, shattered nerves, poor appetite, and the many other symptoms brought on by the vital organs being weakened, come forward stating that Dreco has put new life and energy into their rundown system.

Read how it helped Mrs. Hulda Werner, the well-known matron living at 427 So. River-St., this city. She says: "For years I suffered agonies from stomach troubles. Gas bloated out my stomach and brought on terrible pains and everything I ate turned sour. I was always belching up sour liquids. I couldn't eat even the lightest foods without suffering with indigestion. I had severe pains in my back, was nervous and constipated and, in fact, was practically an invalid, hardly able to do my own housework.

"I tried most everything before Dreco came to town, but could not get a minutes relief. Dreco, however, proved just what I needed and although it sounds impossible it made me almost entirely well in three short weeks. Now I can eat anything without suffering with my stomach. My bowels are now as regular as the clock, the pains in my back have been relieved, my nerves have been quieted and I feel fine in every way. I eat, sleep and work like another woman and I give full credit to Dreco."

Mr. Marr Baker, the well-known Expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schlitz Bros. Downtown Drug Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him.

Rumanians Keep Sharp Eyes On Their Queen In America

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is the first uncensored, detailed dispatch outlining conditions in Roumania since Queen Marie sailed to America. When sensational, conflicting reports from Bucharest and other Central European and Balkan capitals began to flood the cables, NEA Service sent John Graudenz, veteran correspondent, from Berlin to Bucharest. To avoid the drastic Roumanian censorship, which has held up news and caused expulsion of correspondents, Graudenz returned to Berlin to file this dispatch.

BY JOHN GRAUDENZ
NEA Service Special Correspondent
Bucharest—Queen Marie of Roumania was not ordered home by her government, but she was cabled peremptorily to watch her step during her American tour.

Marie stepped off the reservation in discussing the future of her son Prince Carol, the government felt, so it sent her word, in effect to "pipe down."

This explains the cabled reports that King Ferdinand had recalled his spouse.

For many years the faction in power, headed by former Premier Bratianu, had opposed the queen's long-planned trip. According to the Roumanian constitution, "the king dominates, but does not rule."

When the cabinet finally relented, Marie was forced to pledge herself to refrain from any discussion of politics abroad.

Consequently when, in an interview with the American press, the queen aired the possibilities of Carol's return as Crown prince, the government sent its official warning.

But this half-medieval, half-oriental, Balkan capital, with its constant atmosphere of intrigue and censorship trying to hamper the life of the ordinary citizen is not at all agitated by any aspects of the tour of its lovely ruler.

Nearly everyone is happy about it and this correspondent discovered real popular affection for the whole royal family. King Ferdinand, a sick man from a liver complaint that might take him away at almost any time, goes driving through the streets to meet not bombs, but sincere tributes of good will.

Various rumors spread through Bucharest—such as those to the effect that Marie had been ordered home. These are wafted as contraband over the border, because rigid censorship has been clamped down upon the newspapers, which must not even hint criticism of royalty. One finds that powerful factions support former Crown Prince Carol's desire to return and there is wide discussion of the possibility despite the press censorship.

A high official told me the foreign office was much pleased with the trip's success, which was in all ways beneficial to Roumania.

It was hinted that while Marie's tour was strictly of a private character, she would naturally discuss finances and even the possibility of a loan when she met J. P. Morgan and other financiers.

"If such conversation should produce practical results, they would be welcome, so there's not the slightest reason for regret from a national viewpoint," said the official.

Roumania's morals, both personal and commercial, are somewhat "oriental," so nobody sees anything wrong in the "businesslike manner" of the queen in America.

"They're used to that sort of thing right at home, for the royal family is said to buy its necessities and luxuries chiefly against certificates issued by concerns capitalizing the advertisement "by special appointment to their majesties."

Prestige means everything to Roumanians, so nothing must be said against the royal family, although stories are to be heard about the loves of Queen Marie.

Really and unmistakably the queen is greatly beloved, especially among the people who say, "our dear Marie is making a long trip to the United States for our sake, trying to get credit."

The existent state of siege is obviously threatened with confiscation, either refrain from criticism or trust the reader's ability to read between the lines. First reports of Marie's reception, distributed by the official radio agency, sounded enthusiastic, but when some newspapers later cited unfavorable American press comment, they were confiscated. Generally, however, the entire press seems solidly behind the crown for nationalistic reasons.

Old King Ferdinand always has been apathetic toward his wife's dominance, but nevertheless is annoyed over reports from America.

I personally saw the king a few days ago in his carriage on the Calea Victoriei, clad in a green hunter's coat and hat. The throngs greeted him quietly but sincerely.

Naturally, however, his sickness is causing continual discussion of Carol's prospects. Carol is in Paris but his most intimate secretary is at Belgrade to sound out national sentiment. Except for a few old generals, the entire army favors his return, although this is legally impossible without a constitutional amendment.

Of course Carol could return by a coup d'etat if he were willing to bear the consequences, but all depends on the intentions of his enemy—the real dictator of Roumania, Bratianu.

Besides the army, the newly fused party of Aristocrats—peasants—and the Transylvanian nationalists favor his return, and this undoubtedly would have had a majority in recent elections of terrorism had not been resorted to by the Avarescu faction.

Marie stepped off the reservation in discussing the future of her son Prince Carol, the government felt, so it sent her word, in effect to "pipe down."

This explains the cabled reports that King Ferdinand had recalled his spouse.

For many years the faction in power, headed by former Premier Bratianu, had opposed the queen's long-planned trip. According to the Roumanian constitution, "the king dominates, but does not rule."

When the cabinet finally relented, Marie was forced to pledge herself to refrain from any discussion of politics abroad.

Consequently when, in an interview with the American press, the queen aired the possibilities of Carol's return as Crown prince, the government sent its official warning.

But this half-medieval, half-oriental, Balkan capital, with its constant atmosphere of intrigue and censorship trying to hamper the life of the ordinary citizen is not at all agitated by any aspects of the tour of its lovely ruler.

Nearly everyone is happy about it and this correspondent discovered real popular affection for the whole royal family. King Ferdinand, a sick man from a liver complaint that might take him away at almost any time, goes driving through the streets to meet not bombs, but sincere tributes of good will.

BOARD REFUSES TO MORTGAGE FUTURE

Rejects Resolution to Bind Supervisors to Action in November

A proposed "gentleman's agreement" to complete in 1927 a road between Appleton and Kimberly for which an appropriation of $30,000 was rejected this year fared poorly on the floor of the county board Saturday morning.

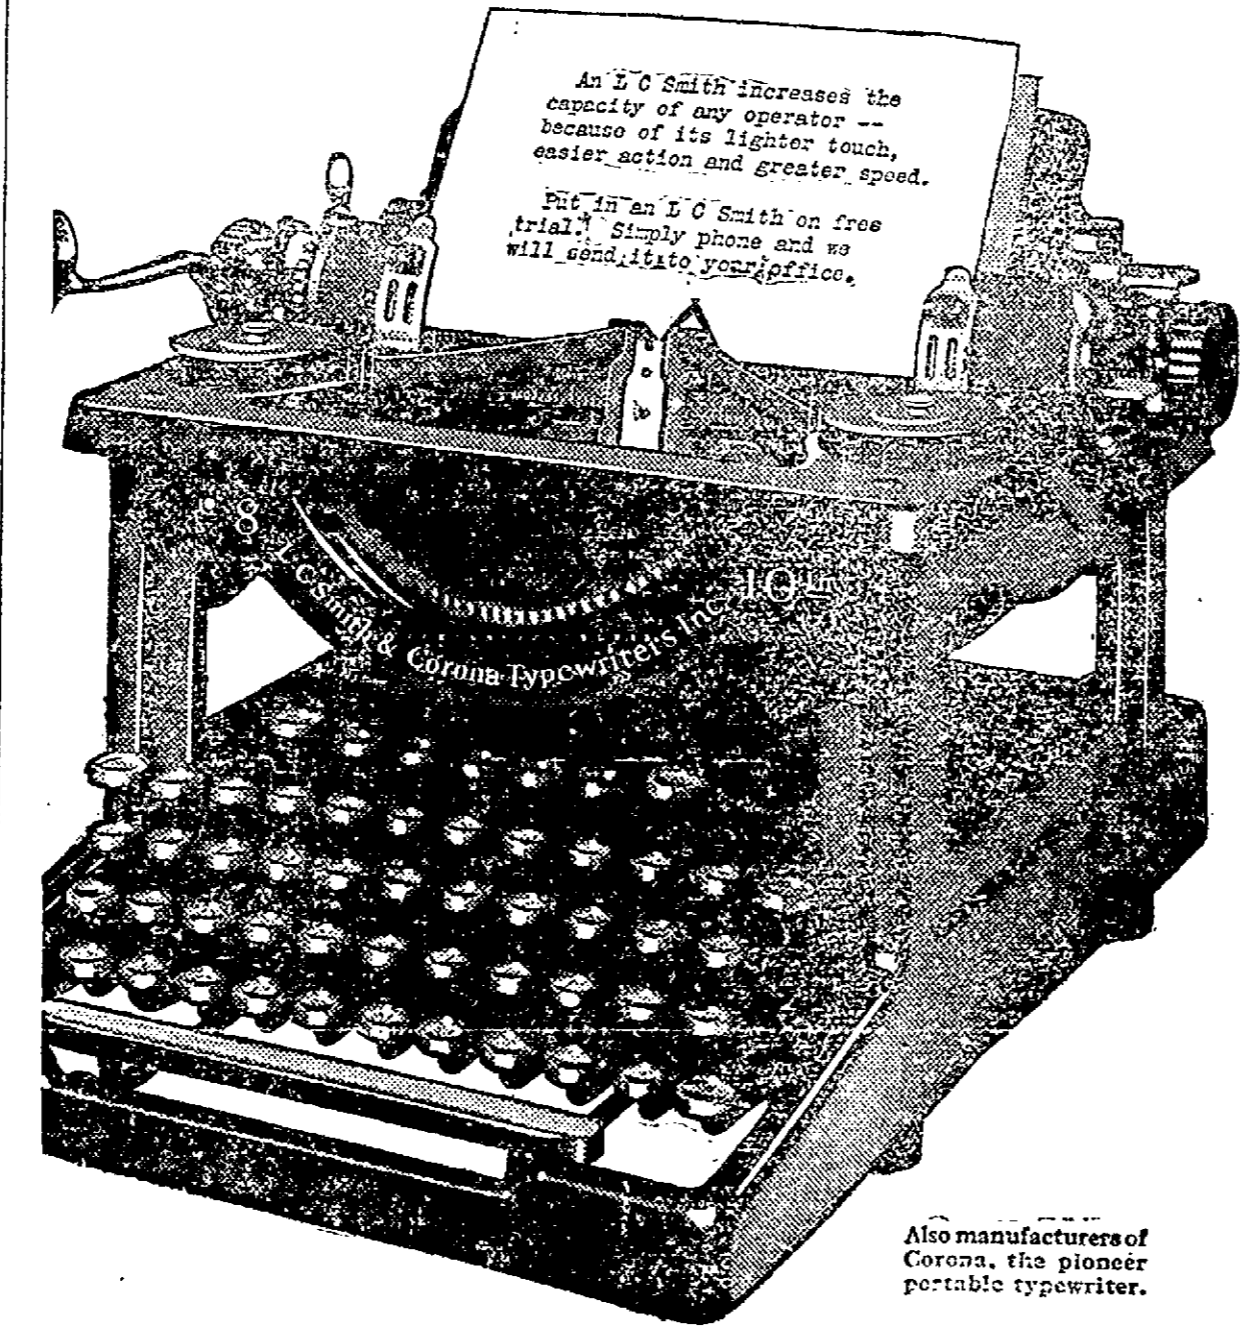

The resolution included a promise on the part of the county board that before any highway appropriations are made at the 1927 November session the appropriation for the Kimberly project will be favorably acted upon.

After considerable discussion in which Supervisor P. H. Ryan argued that the present board has no right to bind the board next November. An amendment was adopted referring the resolution back to the highway committee for rewording.

The objection of the supervisors was that the resolution should be reduced to the form of a communication and suggestion or a memorial to the board sitting next year.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY MOVES
The C. M. Hall Lamp company, an old established manufacturing industry of Kenosha, is moving its plant to Michigan. The Kenosha Manufacturers association has issued the following appeal in behalf of the many old employees of the company who are thrown out of work:
When old established manufacturing industries remove from the city, they leave behind a number of faithful and conscientious workmen. Place yourself in the position of these loyal workers facing winter with no assurance of employment. To them the future is dark and gloomy and through no fault of theirs. The roof has, as it were, been taken from over their heads and they are left out in the cold. Many of our plants will require extra help. What better spirit of co-operation can members of the association show than to furnish situations to faithful workers of the C. M. Hall Lamp Company. Pass up hiring outsiders who have no interest in Kenosha and give the jobs to home people, many of whom are property owners. They cannot well leave the city with their families, especially with no prospect of employment. This is a splendid chance for us to show the faithful operative that the association as a unit is interested in his future welfare.

We do not know why the Hall company is leaving Kenosha, a city which a number of years ago underwent phenomenal industrial development and which is situated exceptionally well for manufacturing. However, the inferences are plain. The employees of the Hall company who are left high and dry, unless they choose to follow the re-location of its plant at heavy expense and inconvenience, will have a new appreciation of certain conditions in Wisconsin which are bearing down on manufacturers. It is to be hoped that the appeal of the Manufacturers association of Kenosha will be effective and that these employees will speedily receive new jobs, but how much better it would have been for all concerned, company, city and men, if the plant could have been retained in Kenosha.

LEOPOLD AND ASTRID
There are pleasant touches of romance and reminiscences of fairy lore in the wedding of Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium, to Princess Astrid, of Sweden. In the old fairy stories, it will be remembered, the beautiful princess longs for a handsome lover, who shall want her for herself, regardless of kings or queens or kingdoms. The dashing lover arrives under her balcony window on a fiery steed—and all the rest of it.

Of course Leopold did not come to Astrid on a fiery steed, but he came by third class rail compartment, and that was his way of showing Princess Astrid that he was coming for her and not for the pomp and the glory and the circumstance of a political alliance. Observers say it is truly a love match, that the young couple are thoroughly devoted.
What a direct contrast to most royal weddings, undertaken at the behest of reigning powers for political purposes! Usually it is a case of expediency, to bind in ties of blood two tottering or scheming kingdoms. Can it be wondered that intrigues abound under such circumstances? Cheated of love in their own household, the principals either spend their lives in secret and illicit loves or else in sorrow for a happiness denied them.

Such should not be the case with Leopold and Astrid. Everything points to a life of happy companionship, and if Astrid does eventually become Queen of the Belgians, she will reign with the same grace and simplicity and good judgment that characterizes her daily life now. At any rate, all the world loves a lover, we are told, and so the world extends to the newly wedded royal pair the heartiest of congratulations and all hopes for a happy, productive life.

THE SKYSCRAPER
Americans who have been accustomed to hearing the skyscraper acclaimed as this country's outstanding architectural achievement noted with something of a shock Wednesday the New York address before the National Municipal league in which Henry H. Curran, counsel to the City Club of New York, denounced towering structure as a plague ranging "alongside our ancient scourges of cholera, yellow fever, tuberculosis and slums."

We gather that Mr. Curran is not fond of the skyscraper. And neither, for that matter, are most experts in city planning and the meeting of traffic problems. New York had to have skyscrapers because New York was confined in business expansion to the space of Manhattan island, and was compelled upward for lack of any other place to go. New York is making the best of the necessity for skyscrapers by building them on designs of marvelous beauty, and by forcing the pyramid type of construction to minimize the loss of light and air.

For the rest of the country the skyscraper is a transplanted freak. Cities with infinite prairies and meadow to spread over in comfort have aped New York and stuffed themselves and their automobiles into unnecessary confined downtown areas. Congestion, danger, discomfort, lost health have resulted. When in a single building are crowded a number of inhabitants sufficient to populate a small city, their garaging and close-by feeding become a problem which is never met satisfactorily. If rapid transit is provided the effect is to build new populations dependent upon it, increase the value of down-town real estate and run the buildings higher in the air than ever instead of reducing congestion.

When cities like Detroit and Chicago go in for superscrapers they sell their only unique birthright—the one possession they do not have to share with the New York metropolis. That birthright is the blessing of space.

GREETING A QUEEN
Despite occasional tongue-tying orders from home and certain difficulties connected with her train party, Queen Marie is doing a pretty good job of seeing the country, dining with the prominent, storing up all the superficial information she can obtain and holding to a queenly dignity which at times has seemed in peril.
If she is seriously hoping to obtain a loan for defaulting Rumania, she has apparently made little progress. The bond buying public has the idea all scouted in advance, which probably is fatal. If she had plans of a wealthy American alliance for her daughter the trip seems a little speedy for that. So far as her private commercial ambitions are concerned they are probably little better off than before her arrival. But forgetting these drawbacks and considering the trip merely as a queenly tour for pleasure and information, the transcontinental voyage of Rumania's first lady seems reasonably successful.

A point to be noted is that she has found very little of that kind of inferiority complex which inspires some Americans to an indiscriminate hatred of kings and queens simply because they are "royalty," and this is a "democratic country." A few Chicago aldermen gave themselves and their constituents away this week by refusing to attend a mayor's greeting party on the brave ground that they were protesting against "the form of government which the queen represents." But for most of us the time has passed when we considered the only sane government for Europeans, Asiatics, Senegambians, Zulu islanders and Patagonians alike was represented by the American Constitution. It's the best for us, by a long way, but not necessarily for Rumania. A king and queen may be far and away the preferable system for that country; and if the people who hold these legitimate jobs want to come to America, intelligent Americans are perfectly capable of greeting them without seeing red.

TULIPS
I never plant a tulip in the fall
To brave the winter's frost and ice and snow,
And some at last repentant through it all,
But what its secrets I should like to know.
Where in this brown dead thing does beauty hide?
What is this spark of life which none can see?
Here last and stalk and petals red abide Awaiting spring to come and set them free.
I only know this miracle occurs
And in that faith I planted bulbs today,
Certain when April's gentle sunshine stirs
The fire of life my garden will be gay.
If tulip buds so dead in early fall
Can come to blossom under gentler skies,
Should we who grove under any doubt at all
That our best love's one in splendor rises?

THE NATURE OF ARTHRITIS
People with Billings complaint often ask, what difference it makes whether we call an illness the rheumatism or why isn't the well known and commonly understood term rheumatism just as good as the high sounding term arthritis. These people remind me of the old gossip whose notions are invariably authentic, for she promptly subdues any incipient questioning by remarking: "Ain't I heard tell?"

It makes all the difference in the world whether we tacitly admit that any of the respiratory diseases may be caused by bad weather or exposure to wet or cold the outlook for further progress in the prevention of the respiratory diseases (which now cause three-fourths of all the sickness doctors attend) is indeed hopeless. Surely our children will not take any more care to avoid such "exposure" than our grandparents did, not even if all the great health officers and other authorities publish warnings every time it rains, snows or blows. Somehow, people are growing callous toward the grave warnings issued from time to time by health authorities. This is the most encouraging sign of the times, in my opinion—that the people are not taking very seriously these dire warnings about the danger of going out without one's heavy armor on, or without overcoats or hat or chest protector, these raw, cold damp days.

It makes all the difference in the world whether we call joint inflammation by a name which is at least not misleading—arthritis means joint inflammation, nothing else—or by a name which carries a suggestion of exposure to cold or dampness. The name "rheumatism" means a catarrhal state, nothing else.

The nature of arthritis is not yet wholly understood. We know that the important cause of joint inflammation is focal infection, that is, certain germs, usually streptococci or kinds called streptococci, which have found lodgement in, say, the tonsils, or in the gums or at the root of a tooth, or in the prostate gland, or in a nasal sinus, make their way from this focus to the lining of a joint, through the blood stream, and in the joint set up the inflammatory process which constitutes arthritis.

But this is probably not the sole cause of arthritis. At least, physicians who have studied the problem more thoroughly believe that other factors must be considered; other influences than bacterial infection are concerned in the development and in the successful treatment of arthritis.

For one thing, a feature of nearly all cases of long enduring or chronic arthritis is the formation of new bone material or the removal or absorption of old bone material, or both processes simultaneously in different parts of the affected joint. This feature of the disease calls for a knowledge of physiological chemistry—knowledge conspicuously wanting where the quaint old "uric acid" obsession still survives.

Overeating, not of meat or "red meats" particularly, but of all kinds of food, is a factor of much importance in many cases of arthritis. In a sequel article we shall undertake to explain the influence of overeating in the development and protraction of this common disability.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Swimming Pool Sanitation
I distrust the sanitary care given the swimming pool which I frequent. To avoid eye infections should one use something like boric acid after swimming in a pool? I have noticed some swimmers coating the nasal passages with petroleum before entering the pool. It that a protection against infection? How about painting the throat with tannin to harden it against infection? (S. J. F.)
Answer.—I doubt whether the use of protolatum or tannin or any similar agents will prevent infection. But the use of a simple boric acid eye wash would do no harm and may do some good. Use a solution of about a teaspoonful of boric acid to the pint of boiled water, and have it comfortably warm when putting it in the eyes. The same boric acid solution might be used to gargle the throat on leaving the pool. Some swimmers insert loose plugs of cotton saturated with petroleum in the nostrils before entering the pool, and breathe through the mouth while swimming. This probably does prevent many infections. Even with properly managed chlorination and frequent or constant change of water, one must take some chance of infection when sharing a bath with other persons. Then, too, some public swimming pools are open to persons who harbor communicable disease—no reasonable medical inspection to guard against this danger. Finally, not a few patrons are carriers of infection—chronic sinus, nasal, ear or other lesions which they feel under no obligation to mention. Next to a wallowing in a tub when no one else is using it, my notion of a questionable privilege is getting into a big tub when everybody's using it.

EVOLUTION
NOW THAT THEY HAVE TAKEN UP MACHINE GUNS
WHO KNOWS TO WHAT LENGTH
THEY EVENTUALLY MAY GO?
The cartoon depicts the evolution of the 'Red Eyed Mike's Gang' from simple tools to machine guns. It shows a progression from a simple stick to a lever-action rifle, then to a machine gun, and finally to a tank-like vehicle. The gang members are shown using these weapons in a comical, exaggerated manner.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

Q. Should aerial wires for radio be insulated? W. H.
A. The Loomis Radio College says that the aerial wires may be either insulated or not. The only effect is upon the durability of the wires, and not upon the reception. Bare copper wire, number 14, has been used extensively for amateur aereals. This is perfectly satisfactory when new, but as it soon becomes corroded from exposure to the weather, it is uneconomical in the long run. Phosphor bronze is sometimes used, but this has a rather high resistance. Many amateurs have been recently installing aereals made of the regular weather-proofed insulated wires used for long distance power lines.
Q. Does the Philadelphia Mint coin more money than the other mints? E. C. B.
A. The Philadelphia Mint is the largest in this country. It does 90 per cent of the business. San Francisco comes next and Denver is the last. At the present time there are only three mints in operation in the United States.
Q. What is the record number of eggs for a hen to lay in one year? C. R. M.
A. The record is 345. This record was made by a white leghorn in New Zealand. In the United States the record is 335. This record was made in the State of Washington.
Q. What is the origin of the term "cracker" as applied to the country people of Georgia? L. L. G.
A. Harris M. King, a Georgian, says that it originated in Savannah in much this fashion: "Countrymen would come into the city in their carts, bringing their products for sale to the city; and after disposing of what they had, would buy what they required for their country homes. Q. What is the record number of eggs for a hen to lay in one year? C. R. M.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE
This Pet Fits In a Water Glass
BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.
How would you like to have a pet that just fits in a water glass? The marmoset monkey will. He is a very likeable fellow and "smart for his size," as some folks say of children.
In Brazil "the woods are full of them." If you ever have the chance to take the famous railroad ride to the coffee plantations near Sao Paulo, you will have great fun watching the marmosets. The manner in which they scamper from limb to limb in the jungle and the chatter they keep up is astonishing.
The marmoset cannot stand the cold. As a rule this queer quirk of nature will have a body about six inches long while the tail will be eight and a half inches long. The makes the marmoset a gymnast of great ability.
Some people call the marmoset the squirrel monkey, and it is a good name. He has very large ears, and you can find them if you look in the odd, fan-like tufts of hair on the side of the head. The hair is silky, not quite an inch long of a grayish tint. Spread it back and it appears to be streaked black and reddish brown.

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

New York — James W. Dean, who once upon a time signed his name to this daily letter, Wandered into town the other day for the first time in a couple of months.

I asked him, as an old-timer who once kept a keen eye on the Manhattan passing show, what in particular caught his attention.

"It's the way this darn town changes," said Dean. "I came through here on the way to the Dempsey fight. I stood at the very 'window' from which I'm looking now, and I saw a building begin to sprout, like a slender stalk of corn. Today I look out and there stands a 20-story giant with a big sign out telling me that that office are for rent. And, that's just between the fight and now. I don't dare go down town."

"And maybe that's why even those who get fed up on the place keep finding something to interest them. If they don't go up town for a couple of weeks or so they walk into a strange place. Take any other city in the world and you can go downtown pretty certain of what you will see there. But New York—go away for two months and it's all you can do to find familiar places. The whole thing changes. Now skyscrapers go up and new architectures are conceived. If you didn't see the corner sign you wouldn't believe your own eyes. I used to haunt every prominent corner getting copy for this column, but if I had to start again tomorrow I'd have to start all over. I wouldn't know where I was in the eye when you come back."

It isn't only the fellow who's been away that notices it.

There used to be a little place in "the village" where, during the summer, some of the boys would stop to get a glass of beer. I dropped in there three weeks or a month ago. The other day I decided to shock a visitor. I went to the place, rang the secret bell and waited. In a few moments a woman in the frock of one of the church sisterhoods answered the door.

The place had become a day nursery operated by a church. I don't know where the bootlegger is. Perhaps he was elected a congressman or something at the November elections.

Again! Not many weeks ago I noticed the wreckers doing their worst on old Delmonico's.

Ah, thought I, I'll drop by and pick up a few picturesque details about old Delmonico's wreckage. Arriving at the spot, a spears-like structure, beautiful in line and eccentric in needle-like design, hit my eye. I thought I was on the wrong street.

"Say," I asked a policeman "Where's the old Delmonico ruin? I'm all bawled up."

"There it is," he said, pointing to the monument of steel and concrete.

It is sometimes used in designating the country people of North and South Carolina and Florida.

Q. What is the nickname of Bucharest, the capital of Rumania? G. T.
A. Bucharest is often called, "The Paris of the Orient."

Q. Has the League of Nations a flag? N. B. S.
A. Several designs have been submitted and are under consideration, but as yet none has been selected, and the League has no flag.

Q. Do goats eat tin cans? M. C.
A. While it is not true that goats eat tin cans, they do eat paper. It is probably the paper labels on the cans that attract them.

Q. Should a person actually weigh the amount given on scales as the average weight for given heights and ages? M. D. H.
A. Many authorities agree that after a person passes the age of thirty, he should weigh from 10 to 20 per cent less than the weight given on these scales as average. They explain that after that age a person has ceased to grow and does not need extra weight for building. It is therefore deemed unnecessary to tax the heart with pumping blood through tissues which are not actually needed.

Q. What is the English Speaking Union? E. M. P.
A. It is an organization one of the purpose of which is the promotion of the English language. The headquarters is at 345 Madison Avenue, New York City.

MOTHERS' PENSION COSTS COUNTY OVER $2,000 IN OCTOBER

Order of County Judge Holds 152 Partially Broken Families Together

Humanitarianism combined with sound sociological principles last month cost Outagamie county taxpayers $2,531.50—but 152 partially broken families were held together by order of County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, who dispenses widows' aid funds, more commonly known as Mothers' pension.

In reality the checks mailed out monthly to women who are attempting to bring up a family where the head of the house has died do not in any sense represent a pension, the funds so allotted are not distributed as a premium on motherhood or widowhood, with the state it is a sound business principle in which the motivating spirit is an attempt to bring up proper children in a proper home atmosphere which countless experiments have proved can not be supplied in the environment of charitable institutions.

Although from time to time the number of women receiving this financial aid fluctuates the average annually spent by the county is approximately $40,000.

The maximum amount allowed in any instance is $40, usually in a family where there are more than four children under age and the minimum on the books is $10 monthly. The rough average is approximately $24.50 monthly.

The only exception to actual widowhood under which a woman can receive aid for her children is where the husband and father has been sentenced to a penal institution. Deserter without divorce does not constitute grounds for aid.

To procure monthly financial assistance, which is only aid for dependent children, a woman must be a resident of the county for one year or more; she must be either widowed or the wife of a man committed to a penal institution. Following her application through the district attorney's office the case is investigated at the discretion of the county court. If the application is from a woman living outside the city the investigation is usually prosecuted by the chairman of the town in which she lives.

If the report appears favorable before Judge Heinemann on a day set aside for such hearings and it is obligatory that she bring with her two competent witnesses.

The witnesses must swear to her moral fitness as an individual and a mother and must convince the judge that the children involved will be better provided for in their mother's care than if they were sent to state homes. Although regulated by the law the amount allowed is left somewhat to the discretion of the judge.

While a preponderant majority of applications are made in good faith a large number, however, of intentional and unintentional attempts at frauds are brought to the attention of the court in the course of a year while dispensing widows' aid funds, the record shows.

By far the greatest number of such instances, Judge Heinemann said, are among women whose knowledge of the workings of this law are vague and who assume that the state has a duty to become "foster father" to any and all children whose paternal parent is dead, failed or among the missing.

Remarriage automatically cancels the self imposed obligation of the state and no aid is allowed for a child after it has reached 14 years of age.

The estate of the paternal parent governs in many instances whether aid is allowed and if so how much. The intention of the law is merely to build up the income in homes in straitened circumstances to a point where a mother can hold her home intact and bring up her children in self respect and decency—there is no luxury clause in the statutes.

Members of the football team and the coaches, Josephs Shields and Leonard DeLong, spoke at the general assembly meeting at Appleton high school Friday afternoon in honor of the closing of a successful football season and the opening of the basketball team. Edward Frieders, cheer leader, had charge of the meeting.

Announcements of the interclass basketball tournament opening Monday afternoon were made by J. Raymond Walsh, faculty athletic manager. The three classes and the faculty will enter teams, and the school squad will be selected from the best student material shown in the class tournament.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil. No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 50c, 60c. adv.

CHURCH PAPER EULOGIZES MEMORY OF FORMER PASTOR

The memory of Frederick Thomas Rouse, D. D., pastor of First Congregational church for eight years, is eulogized in a supplement to "Our Church," quarterly publication of the church, issued Saturday. Dr. Rouse, who left Appleton 20 years ago, died in February 1926 at the age of 67 at Worcester, Mass., where he was serving as pastor of Pilgrim Memorial church at the time of his death.

A picture of Dr. Rouse appears on the cover of the supplement and it contains his life history as well as a eulogy of his life by Dr. John Faville, who knew him for years. A memorial tablet to Dr. Rouse was recently placed in his Worcester church.

WISCONSIN LOSES POWER IN CONGRESS

State Congressmen to Exercise Less Influence in 70th Session

BY BASCOM M. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C.—The ten Wisconsin members of Congress will exercise less influence in the Seventieth Congress than they did in the Sixty-eighth, when they held the balance of power.

Calculating that the Wisconsin delegation will vote against the administration on most issues, Republicans still have a clear majority of fifteen. As the Wisconsin delegation and other irregulars are listed as Republican, the G. O. P. paper majority in the House is twenty-six. Tabulations on the majority were made by W. Tyler Page, Clerk of the House.

Mr. Page's compilation shows the complexion of the next House as: Republicans, 236; Democrats, 196; Farm-Labor, two and Socialist, one. In the present House there are 247 Republicans, 183 Democrats, two Socialists, two Farmer-Labor and one independent. Included in the Republican list are eleven members of the Wisconsin delegation, which rarely vote with the Republicans, although labeled as members of that party.

Despite their narrow margin Republican leaders are convinced that they will be able in the next Congress to organize the House with little trouble. They are: Speaker Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, Republican Floor Leader John C. Winston of Connecticut, Assistant Floor Leader James T. Beegs of Ohio, Chairman of the Rules Committee Bertrand H. Snell of New York.

Complexions of the Senate in the Seventieth Congress will be: Republicans, 48; Democrats, 47; Farmer-Labor, 1.

"CASCARETS" FOR YOUR BOWELS IF HEADACHY, SICK

To-night! Clean your bowels and end Headaches, Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box. Put aside—just once—the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters which merely force a passage through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Bile, Sour Stomach or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them. adv.

RYAN STALLS OFF HASTY ACTION ON ROAD RELOCATION

Board Advised to Proceed Cautiously With McCarty Crossing Project

Supervisor R. H. Ryan threw the proverbial monkey-wrench into the smooth moving machinery of county lawmaking Saturday morning when a resolution was introduced at the county board meeting seeking an appropriation of $6,000 for improvements and relocating the road at McCarty's crossing, near Kaukauna, so that a dangerous grade crossing might be avoided.

A motion to suspend the rules and take immediate vote on the proposed appropriation roused the ire of Appleton's supervisor and he interposed an objection. Mr. Ryan's first suggestion was that the proposal be laid over a few days for consideration of the board members; this was quickly followed by a motion that the entire matter be tabled until the February session. Anton Jensen, Little Chute, secured a favorable motion to be tabled to Monday afternoon.

Mr. Jensen argued that members of the board interested enough to investigate details had made a trip to the scene last Thursday after dinner at the asylum.

The project entails the purchase of some land and the acceptance by the county of a gift of additional right-of-way.

ROLLMAN URGES DELAY
Mr. Ryan countered all arguments for immediate action by declaring that he for one would like to see the offers of free land put down in black and white.

Adding a touch of the unexpected to the argument O. C. Rollman, state division engineer, asked permission to address the board and declared that the railway company involved and the state have a project under consideration for some time past to build a viaduct at the crossing.

Although the viaduct might not be built this year Mr. Rollman advised the board to consider the project thoroughly before acting, as he declared the viaduct will be built within two years.

JEWELLED ORNAMENTS ADD A LOT TO THE PLAIN HAT

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

New York—Inconstant women have developed a craze for millinery. This season the milliners fairly jumped with joy, saying they had broken the spell of the small, close hat.

There were new turbans that made all sort of odd shapes, developed in ribbons, velvets and broadens. Plumes were mentioned as more than a possibility, and flowers blossomed out on hats that had been plain.

And all of this innocent bystanders would take and they didn't. Perhaps some crowns defied themselves a bit, but in the end, it was added to the list of hats that are in general hats can't expand and develop as they were supposed to.

THEY'RE STANDING PAT

Real hat, it's worn by really smart women are just about as plain as they ever were, but the jeweled ornaments are much more daring and sparkling.

At a committee meeting for a social benefit last week, I looked around carefully, and the result of my investigation was that hats are standing pat.

The type worn by Mrs. John Moffett, in the photograph, is one of the new best adaptations that is seen in many versions—a plain hard across the face, and a fuller section above to give height.

Mrs. Oswald Jimenis is wearing a velvet model that has become a classic—nothing at all but the beloved cloche with just a bit more width at the side.

Go where you will you will find this simple, unadorned hat worn with the smartest of coats and sometimes with quite formal gowns.

While the upturned brim seems to be in the minority, one occasionally sees it with the raised crown, as worn by Mrs. Perry Beadleston, and it has no look of "not belonging."

Personally, I believe the drooping brim everyone is wearing this year looks very well on women with dark eyes and auburn features, but it gives the woman with deep set eyes more shadows than she ought to have to bear. For her, I believe the brimless turbans are a better choice.

At the United Hums meet, I saw Mrs. Payne Whitney in a brize fur coat and a brimless hat with an upturned fold of felt that was much more becoming to her than the large hats she was wearing during the summer.

Her daughter, Mrs. Charles Payson, wore a small felt, with an upturned brim, and a short gold tassel falling off the left side. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt had a very interesting hat of black velvet with many colors wound about the crown.

FLATTERING FOX FUR
All this color was framed by an exceedingly wide fox collar—iron which nothing is more flattering. Mrs. Oliver Harriman in her box, was remaining true to the picture hat and looking as regal as usual. She is one woman who can get away with plumes, but I know of no one else who can.

Mrs. Frank Henderson wore a close beige turban with her beige caracul coat.

SOME OF THE HAT TYPES PREFERRED BY THESE PROMINENT NEW YORKERS. TOP TO BOTTOM: MRS. C. PERRY BEADLESTON, MRS. OSWALD JIMENIS, MRS. JOHN MOFFETT.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Junior, who is rarely seen about New York these days, was at the meet in a rather square-crowned felt hat and a silver fox fur, looking very smart. She isn't quite so stylish and sad looking as she used to be, and has developed an amazing chic. With her was Mrs. George Andie in a swank mink coat, and Margaret Trumble with a plaid skirt, black velvet jacket and hat, and a white flower in her buttonhole.

JEWELS AT OPERA

The opera, which is now added to our list of places to go, is an uncelled variety point for styles. There is still a notion that you dress for the opera, and that you wear your jewels, if any.

Monday evening I saw Mrs. Henry Clow in a velvet and many diamonds. Mrs. Harry C. Cushing, formerly Catherine Vanderbilt in white chiffon and crystals. Mrs. C. B. Alexander in white with a diamond cap on her head. I saw Mrs. H. H. Rogers in white. Mrs. George U. Harris in the most shimmering and lovely green tulle. Mrs. R. Ogden Bacon in regal red velvet. Mrs. George T. Brokaw in white velvet, and Mrs. W. Deering Howe in white.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Stewed eggs with lemon, cereal, thin cream, rice griddle toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Chicken and macaroni loaf, apple and celery salad, rye bread, canned strawberries, plain cake, milk, tea.

DINNER—Noodle soup, New England boiled dinner, cider salad, whole wheat bread, Indian pudding, milk, coffee.

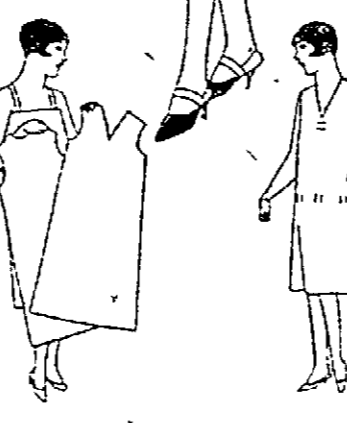

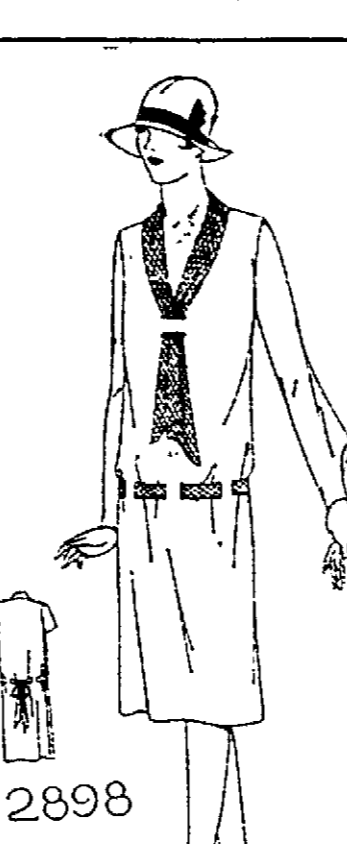

Children under six years of age should not be allowed to eat the corned beef of the "boiled dinner." However the noodle soup, vegetables, a lettuce salad and small portion of the pudding without the hard sauce furnish an ample diet. Keep in mind that the children's milk is of great food value while your tea and coffee are not.

Chicken and macaroni loaf is delicious and can be made of boned corned chicken in an emergency.

CHICKEN AND MACARONI LOAF
One and one-half cups macaroni broken in two-inch lengths, 1 cup chopped chicken, 2-3 cup blanched and shredded almonds, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1-4 cup cream, 1-4 teaspoonful salt, one grating of nutmeg, dash mustard.

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain and blanch. Combine with chicken, almonds and cheese. Mix thoroughly and add eggs well beaten and combined with cream and seasonings. Mix thoroughly but lightly and turn into a well buttered, smooth mold. Fill mold about three-quarters full. Butter cover of mold and put in place. Steam for two hours. Remove and invert mold over dish in which loaf is to be served and let stand a few minutes before lifting the mold. Serve with tomato sauce poured around the loaf.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

"Come in here, Faith, I've got something to tell you," Bob Hathaway flung open the door against which Faith was leaning weakly, her hand pressed against her wildly beating heart.

"What in the world is the matter, Bob? Don't cry like that, Cherry," she'll run your new dress," she added dully, feeling suddenly unable to cope with this new drama.

"Bob's been acting like a perfect fiend," Cherry sobbed, running toward Faith, her useless little hands held out in a childish, appealing gesture. "He's been accusing me of the most dreadful things, just because I told him I loved him. You know I did. Faith, I told him, over and over. You wanted him to save me, didn't you? Oh, Faith, I wish I was dead!"

"You've said that over and over, too, and I'm sick of it," Bob Hathaway, turned on her savagely. "Now, you shut up and let me do the talking! Oh, how I'd like to give you a beating!" His hands clenched and unclenched, as if he could hardly restrain them from carrying out his wish.

"If you haven't gone absolutely stark raving, both of you, I wish you'd get hold of yourselves and tell me exactly what happened," Faith cried out sternly. "Where have you been?" Cherry started to speak but Faith laid a hand gently over her lips. "Nothing would do her but that I should change into a Tux and take her over to the Marlboro Country Club. I'm a member. My cousin, Alexander Cluny, put me up last year. Said she wanted my uncle's family to see her with me to see that she got out and dress and dance like a lady. Make a good impression on them before the papers come out tomorrow with the announcement of Uncle Ralph's engagement."

"She didn't have the decency to tell me beforehand that Miss Peabody, that old busybody, had already been here to worm what she could out of you, Faith. I didn't know any of the family had an inkling of Uncle Ralph's insane intentions. Thought you'd be glad if I helped her out. She gave me to understand, without exactly saying so, that the whole stunt was your idea."

"No, no," Faith shook her head, her eyes fixed in sick fascination upon his anger-distorted face.

"Well, she wheedled me and jollied me into doing it. I didn't see where it could do any real harm. Uncle Ralph knows I've gone around with Cherry, told me just the other day he wanted me to help him show her a good time. You didn't know that, did you?" Faith's voice was low and stern, "but I think you might remember that Cherry's my sister, and that you're hurting me as much as you're hurting her, by talking the way you are." In spite of her effort at self-control, her eyes filled with tears and her voice broke on the last words of her lame, inadequate sentence.

"All right! I apologize!" Bob Hathaway said grimly. "But let me tell you this—if you hadn't shielded Cherry all her life, from every painful consequence of her selfishness and folly, she wouldn't be in the mess she's in today."

"What happened?" "Well, before I knew what the little devil was up to, there she was, snuggled up to me, cooling out some thing about giving me my answer now, and that it was 'yes'—oh, for the Lord's sake, shut up!" he snarled at his brown again and turned fiercely toward Cherry, who was sobbing louder than ever. "Right then up rose Cousin Alice. She'd been sitting in one of those big leather chairs, whose back was turned to us, and she smiled up to us, and put her arms around Cherry and said sweet as honey, 'I knew there must be some terrible mistake! So it's Bob, after all, isn't it, my dear? Congratulations!'"

"But—" Faith's arms dropped slowly from Cherry's clinging body, and her eyes were pitiful with appeal as she turned to Bob Hathaway. "I'm afraid I don't understand. Why—what—Cherry, Bob, what does it all mean?"

BUILD UP HEALTH FIRST

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

CHARACTER is of physical generation," said someone—it does not matter whether it was a psychiatrist, a doctor of the mind, or a physician, a doctor of the body. The phrase remains and it is worth more than passing consideration. Take teeth for instance. Any orthodontist, a dental specialist, who straightens teeth and the shape of the jaw bones, not only to improve appearance, but to perfect articulation, mastication and health, will tell you that poor teeth undoubtedly have an effect on character. Crooked teeth, undeveloped teeth, teeth that lie hidden in all sorts of places in the jaw that never see daylight unless dental skill gives them birth—such teeth press upon the nerves, and the whole mental and moral calibre of the child or adult is radically affected.

What is true of the teeth is true of other parts of the body. A sick nerve may be so situated as to contaminate the nerves that may affect not only the health but mental and moral make-up.

To go further, take a person of sluggish constitution, whose organs function sleepily and slowly, or whose endocrines and ductless glands are undrained, oversized, or stagnant. All of them react directly or indirectly on the nerve centers and brain. Consider that new source of many ills, the culprit who now has to stand the blame for many obscure symptoms, is the solar plexus, a large nerve ganglion that lies behind the stomach. Local irritation through the whole body and consequently, the brain, out of commission more or less when it is affected.

There is no doubt but that good health usually generates great character force.

Many of the world's greatest persons have been of great physical strength and endurance.

I doubt if Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Catherine of Russia, Shakespeare, Sarah Bernhardt, Alexander Hamilton or Lincoln were ever ill in the height of their youth or power.

H. G. Wells, whose prodigious work abounds in vital force and hammering conviction, is well named.

Theodore Roosevelt was not strong as a boy. With herculean effort and determination he made himself well and vigorous. He stood for the very personification of force and character, but he built health first of all.

she's in today." He drew a long breath, closed his hot, brilliant blue eyes for a moment, then went on more quietly:

"All the way out to the club she kept trying to get me into a sentimental mood. But that was all over for me, and I told her so. Well, we got to the club about half past nine, and found the regular Saturday night dance in full swing. My cousin Alice, Mrs. Allbright, Uncle Ralph's daughter, you know, was there with her daughter Muriel—she's seventeen—and her husband, Seymour Adbright. I introduced Cherry to them and I thought they acted awfully peculiar, but Uncle Ralph's name wasn't mentioned. Cherry danced with Seymour and I swear she tried to get him going, right under his wife's eyes."

"That's a lie!" Cherry flashed out, her eyes blazing with anger. "Silly old fool! Tried to date me up and I just kidded him along, that's all!" "Hush, Cherry! Is that what the whole rumpus is about?" Faith demanded scornfully of Bob Hathaway.

"Oh, Lord! I wish it was!" he groaned. "She only danced with one other chap besides Seymour—stuck to him like a leech, dancing as close as she could, smiling up at me with half-closed eyes, catching my hand when we left the dance floor—in short, giving a perfect impression of a love-sick flapper out with her boy friend. I was pretty sick. I can tell you, with Cousin Alice and Seymour and Muriel looking on and whispering every time we passed them."

"Finally, she seized my hand and led me off to the library, back of the ballroom. There was only one light on, in a reading lamp over in the far corner. There are several big leather chairs in the library, and when we went in it looked like there wasn't another soul there. Suddenly she flung her arms around my neck and kissed me with a smack loud enough to be heard all over the room. Oh, good Lord!" he pulled a handkerchief out of his breast pocket and snatched at his brow. "I feel like an ass and a cad, telling on a girl like this, but somebody's got to tell you, Faith. And I won't let Cherry misrepresent the whole affair to you!"

"Go on!" Faith prodded him sharply. "What happened?" "Well, before I knew what the little devil was up to, there she was, snuggled up to me, cooling out some thing about giving me my answer now, and that it was 'yes'—oh, for the Lord's sake, shut up!" he snarled at his brown again and turned fiercely toward Cherry, who was sobbing louder than ever. The whole trick with this year's coat is to handle the fur well—to use just what is needed, but never compromise with slenderness or never disturb the line. This coat succeeded perfectly. The material is very fine wool, and the fur is just a shade darker.

GIRLS! HERE'S NEW KIND OF VANITY CASE

A new vanity bracelet for evening wear in place of the ordinary slave bangle has appeared in the drawing rooms of Mayfair. It is composed of four little flat, gold boxes, each about the size of a penny and attached to a Milanese gold chain. The boxes contain a supply of powder, rouge, and lip-stick, the fourth containing a powder puff and mirror. The new mode does away with necessity for a Dorothy bag and can be easily slipped on and off.

PETAL SKIRT FROCK

England's nobility accepts its fashions from America as well as Paris. Lady Rosemary Scoble-Wilbraham, the young sister of the Earl of Lathom, appeared at the Embassy Club dressed in an American petal-skirted frock of pink, open-work embroidery. The background was a black velvet cloak. Around her neck was a ring of square diamonds with a big pearl drop.

SLEEVELESS COATS

While a large number of the new English evening wraps are being made on the coat principle, with inset sleeves, some women prefer the sleeveless, cloak style of garment. English designers are trying hard to do away with the old starchy circular cape. A cape which is finished in a triangle is one of the results. It is made in velvet or fur.

GOLD TISSUE PAJAMAS

Gladys Cooper's new golden pajamas are the talk of Mayfair. They are fashioned of golden tissue with a curiously meshed surface. The long trousers fit closely to Miss Cooper's ankles while the jumper is held in by a deep, closely swathed hip sash which is knotted in front.

FAVOR BLACK AND RED

Black and red are the "fashionable" colors for this winter in Germany, textile firms report. Red mixed with a little blue is regarded as especially "nifty." Blue as ground color has almost gone out of existence.

MELTING POT IN SHOES

Styles in slippers seen about New York were never more varied. They are made from almost any material or leather—velvet in light shades, brocade, metal cloth, and reptile skins. The heels of evening slippers are works of art. Brilliant studs them or brilliant colored leather inserts add variety. While the jumper is held in by a deep, closely swathed hip sash which is knotted in front.

DRESS FOR BROOCHES

May Allison, movie actress, in a new picture, wears an evening gown of simple black chiffon, designed especially as a background for a diamond brooch which she uses to clasp a narrow collar band of white ermine. Sometimes the brooch appears again on a gown of black taffeta, made with a bodice waist cut to fall low over the arms with a band of brilliants over each shoulder.

Kaukauna—Now that football, so far as Kaukauna is concerned, is over, eyes of the local sport fans will be turned to basketball. Particularly will the high school be watched. Of recent years Kaukauna has turned out an exceptionally strong school team and although Coach William Smith lost three of his last year's regulars through graduation, Kaukauna will be well represented on the courts.

Smith has lost two of the finest guards in the valley through graduation, Farwell and Gonyo. Gonyo was captain of the 1925-26 team, and with George Boyd, center, they were the mainstays of the team. Kaukauna had a strong team last season until near its close when one of the men was declared ineligible and the team was shattered.

Added to the usual schedule are two games of the greatest importance. Both of these games are with Appleton. It has been quite a few years since these teams have clashed on the courts. The only time Appleton has met Kaukauna in recent years is during the district tournament and though Appleton has defeated the Orange and Black in every meeting it has done so by a small margin.

Used to Warm Weather

Special to Post-Crescent—Chilton—The farmers of this county who have sown a large acreage of sugar beets are experiencing a double difficulty in harvesting their crop this fall, due to bad weather, and the resulting discouragement among the beet workers, most of whom are Mexicans. Following each of the recent snow storms many of these Mexicans took early transportation for a warmer climate. The majority of these laborers are women and children, who are not used to the rigors of the northern climate, and many of them left without giving any notice to their employers or asking for the wages due them. There are a number of farmers who still have from ten to twenty acres of beets to harvest, and who are on the search for laborers so that the work may be completed.

GERM AND REMEDY

London—Germs carry their own antidotes, according to Sir Thomas Horder, physician to the Prince of Wales. So, if a patient is suffering from certain diseases the proper treatment is to give him more of the germ—the proper solution. The treatment has shown particularly good results in pneumonia and septicemia.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CONTRACTOR SAYS INSPECTOR TORE OUT "GOOD" WALL

Demands District Attorney Arrest Zschaechner for Destroying Property

"They gotta quit knocking my walls around," was the spirit of a complaint voiced by a local contractor to District Attorney John A. Lonsdorf on Monday when he sought redress against Walter Zschaechner, city building inspector, for what the contractor declares, wanton destruction of property.

According to H. A. Noffke, the contractor, he had recently completed the foundation of a house for Edward Barker, 1030 W. Winnebago-st. While grading the lawn of his future home Mr. Barker knocked three cement blocks out of the foundation when the while-tree of the grader caught while a turn was being made.

Later the building inspector, Mr. Nobko asserted to the district attorney, tore out virtually all of the one wall where the loose red tiles constituted part of the foundation. This, he contends, was destructive to property and he declares the wall could have been repaired. The foundation was satisfactory to the property owner, it was stated by him in a letter.

Damage estimated by Mr. Noffke amounted to $180.

Although avowedly seeking a warrant for the inspector on a charge of destruction of property it seemed improbable that the district attorney would issue one. His suggestion to the contractor was that the matter be settled through conference or civil litigation for damages.

STAGE And SCREEN

CLARA BOW, LOU TELLEGEN IN
"PARISIAN LOVE"

Clara Bow, that clever little actress, whose versatility is ever amazing, scores again in a colorful role in "Parisian Love," the B. P. Schulberg picture which opened today at the New Bijou theater. She plays the part of a little Apache girl in the underworld of Paris and her naive charm has never been seen to better advantage.

Donald Keith, the tall, handsome lad who made such a hit in "The Boomerangs," another Schulberg picture, does fine work opposite Miss Bow. Lou Tellegen is fine in the role of the scene-stealer whose kindness brings about the regeneration of the Apache characters portrayed by Miss Bow and Keith. Other players whose work is outstanding are Lillian Leighton, who presents both comedy and pathos in a role ideally suited to her ability as a character actress, James Gordon Russell, Jean de Briac, Otto Matiesen, Alyce Mills and Hazel Keener. The latter two have only small parts in the film, but their presence adds a great deal of beauty to the picture.

The picture has its setting in the Parisian Mont Martre district where the Apaches dwell, although the scenes shift occasionally to the society realm. It unfolds a delightful romance between the Apache boy and girl and their vacation brings about so naturally that one forgets that it was planned action.

The direction was ably handled by Gasnier, whose pictures are consistently good.

"MEN OF STEEL" STARRING
MILTON SILLS IS TREMENDOUS SCREEN SENSATION

Milton Sills' greatest screen offering, "Men of Steel," is now up and running at First National's long heralded photoplay of the steel mills, "Men of Steel," which is showing at the Bijou Theatre 4 days starting today.

To attempt to tell you about this great picture, and it is truly great, would be next to an impossible task. The very greatness of the picture prohibits that. All we can do is advise all who want to see a really great picture with superb acting by star and supporting cast, to see "Men of Steel." You will go away wondering what next the motion picture producers will do.

The story of "Men of Steel" was written by Sills himself, from a suggestion received from R. G. Kirk's short story, "United States Flavor." Mr. Sills should get a few more suggestions and sit down and write some more photoplays, for here he has given the world a beautiful romance, filled with fast moving action, thrills, excitement, suspense, tremendous Sills, in the starring role in our opinion gives the best performance he has ever presented on the screen. He lives his part and gives one of the most convincing portrayals we have yet seen.

Miss Kenyon in the leading feminine role does much to help make this areally big picture. Her work, like that of Sills, stands out as her best in her career. And Mae Allison, George Pawcett, Frank Currier, Victor McLaglen and John Kolb deserve all the praise that can be said of them.

More Numerous Than Fires

Your household goods are probably protected against fire but suppose burglars should break into your home some night, or a servant decamp with some of your more valuable belongings—what then?

Are you protected against that kind of a loss, too? If not, you will be wise to invest today in an adequate amount of Residence Burglary Insurance, because statistics prove that burglaries are six times as numerous as fires.

The policies which I provide will not only pay you for what burglars take but also for what they break. They cover losses caused by dishonest servants, too! and the rates are extremely reasonable.

Just say the word and I will be glad to tell you all about them.

Fighting desperately to keep their goal-line free from the strong and husky invader from the southern part of the state, the Carlins of the Lawrence college Bluebacks earned a 0-0 tie with Carroll college Saturday afternoon at Whiting field as well as a tie for the Wisconsin-Illinois conference title, providing they can trim Northwestern here Saturday. For the Blueback warriors fought every second of the 48 minutes of play with the result that Carroll's vaunted plunging attack, threatening every minute but a brief period in the final quarter, was unable to carry the ball over the goal line.

Carroll's attack consisted of a concerted effort to plunge through the Blue line with its heavy backs aided by a field of ankle-deep mud. The plunges took the lighter Blue line men off their feet and gained large slabs of territory, but the desperate Carlins always fought the invader to a standstill when the shadow of their goalposts loomed across their backs. In this they were aided by the penalties for offside which Carroll incurred frequently. All of Carroll's goaldar marches ended in attempts at placekicks, four in number, but the slippery ball made all failures. The last try came from the Blue 30-yard stripe with but a minute to play.

Lawrence, taught an offense during the last two weeks which would have bothered the Carlins considerably and might have scored a touchdown was unable to use it because of the slippery field and mud and was forced to resort to a defensive game, featuring punting, to hold the heavy Carroll backs from the goal zone. This was true except for the march toward the Orange goal in the third quarter, and another in the fourth.

A Lawrence recovery of a fumbled punt by Carroll in midfield put the Blues in Orange territory for the second time during the game and the Carlins took advantage of it to open up an attack which puzzled Carroll completely. The Blues carried the ball to the 16-yard line by heaves and a few short runs before being stopped. With a great chance to win the battle by a dropkick from the 23-yard line, Nason was forced to hurry by a bad pass and his kick was low.

For Carroll, Bier was the outstanding star of the fray. The big end was called back to fullback to make use of his huge bulk on the muddy field and he ripped and smashed the Blue line, especially the right side, for large gains, making most of Carroll's yardage, thought aided by Lund. Stacy ran the ball back well on punts on the muddy field and Johnson's long spirals gave Carroll a gain on almost every exchange of punts. In the front wall, Jerewsky was a bulwark, stopping Lawrence plunges without a miss.

In the Blue line Hipke, Capt. Counsel and Jessup played the outstanding games, though the entire line stood up well under Carroll's great plunging attack. The Orange were thrown for several losses at Jessup's end. The husky end also got off nice boots all afternoon with the wet ball, though outplayed by the veteran Johnson.

The Blue rear wall played its best game of the season. Bloomer ran in

CORNELL SQUEEZES OUT WIN FROM KNOX

Mount Vernon, Ia.—Cornell scored a touchdown in the first quarter of the game with Knox here Saturday to win 7 to 6 despite a counter for six late in the fourth quarter.

Five completed passes out of nine attempted with a mudcovered ball and long dashes around the ends and through the tackles by Kupka, Cornell half, gave the Purple the touchdown.

The team in fine style as well as playing punts well and working well on both the receiving and hurling ends of passes, the keystone of the attack that took the ball to Carroll territory on the Blue's only real drive. Nason ran the end well though handicapped by the soggy field. Briese and Barfell shone on the defensive, backing up the line on Carroll's plunges in such a manner that after one or two first downs, the Orange was forced to kick. Both men were on the bottom of practically every play that went through the Blue line.

The Orange had two chances to score in the first half, after outplaying the Blues completely but twice Lund's placekicks were wide. The first time came in the opening period when three first downs by Carroll had taken the ball deep into Blue territory. Here the Blues held hard on the 18-yard line and Lund attempted a boot from the 23-yard stripe. In the second quarter he tried again from the 40-yard mark. Lawrence's first chance to score came in the third quarter when after a Carroll man had been punted on was able to use it because of the slippery field and mud and was forced to resort to a defensive game, featuring punting, to hold the heavy Carroll backs from the goal zone. This was true except for the march toward the Orange goal in the third quarter, and another in the fourth.

A Lawrence recovery of a fumbled punt by Carroll in midfield put the Blues in Orange territory for the second time during the game and the Carlins took advantage of it to open up an attack which puzzled Carroll completely. The Blues carried the ball to the 16-yard line by heaves and a few short runs before being stopped. With a great chance to win the battle by a dropkick from the 23-yard line, Nason was forced to hurry by a bad pass and his kick was low.

For Carroll, Bier was the outstanding star of the fray. The big end was called back to fullback to make use of his huge bulk on the muddy field and he ripped and smashed the Blue line, especially the right side, for large gains, making most of Carroll's yardage, thought aided by Lund. Stacy ran the ball back well on punts on the muddy field and Johnson's long spirals gave Carroll a gain on almost every exchange of punts. In the front wall, Jerewsky was a bulwark, stopping Lawrence plunges without a miss.

In the Blue line Hipke, Capt. Counsel and Jessup played the outstanding games, though the entire line stood up well under Carroll's great plunging attack. The Orange were thrown for several losses at Jessup's end. The husky end also got off nice boots all afternoon with the wet ball, though outplayed by the veteran Johnson.

The Blue rear wall played its best game of the season. Bloomer ran in

E. Green Bay 7, Sturgeon Bay 0.
Manitowoc 45, Two Rivers 0.

Another one of those great grid upsets for which the valley conference has become noted this fall, gave Coach Joseph Shields' Appleton high school squad a clear claim to fourth place in the loop standings after Saturday's games. Oshkosh, the cellar champs of the loop, celebrated its 13-15 tie with Fond du Lac two weeks ago by trouncing Sheboygan, one of the strong teams of the circuit, 20-16 at the Chairs own grid. Sheboygan had beaten East Green Bay the week before, 3-2.

Sheboygan's defeat came through poor defensive play and weak tackling and it dropped the Chairs into a fifth place tie with Manitowoc from a fourth place knot with the local Orangemen. Stewert and Arwood were the Oshkosh stars and Testwuide and Timmers starred for Sheboygan.

In the other conference game West Green Bay had no trouble trouncing Fondy, 20-0, to keep its tie for the top with Marquette. East high squeezed out a lucky 7-0 win over Sturgeon Bay, after being outplayed most of the game. The marker came as the result of Bay recovery of a fumble in the Cherry Picker 10-yard line. Manitowoc swamped Two Rivers, 45-0.

PACKERS CONTINUE ON VICTORY STREET

Baymen Trounce Louisville Squad, 14-0, With Lewellyn in Leading Role

Green Bay—The Green Bay Packers continued their victory spree here Sunday by defeating the Louisville Colonels, 14 to 0, in a National league game. The teams battled on a rain swept field.

The Badger state champions presented a makeshift battle front as O'Connell, McIntyre, Foster, Earpe, Hansen and Libbey did not see any action against the southerners.

The invaders battled stubbornly all the way. Early in the first quarter, they held for downs on their 4-foot line, and later in the game presented a stone wall defense when in the shadow of their goal posts.

Louisville made good use of the air drive, with Robinson tossing the water soaked oval like a bullet. However most of their gains were made in their own territory. The Colonels never got within the Bays 30-yard stripe.

There was no scoring in the first two quarters but, as usual, Lambeau and company came back with a vengeance in the third stanza. Getting the ball in mid-field, the Packers marched straight down the field for a touchdown. Lewellyn finally slashing over inside of the guard for the score, after Louisville had held firmly on three rushes. Purdy added the extra point.

The Packers got their other marker in the fourth frame when Lewellyn grabbed a well directed pass while parked in the safety zone without an opponent within yards of him. Purdy kicked goal.

LATE START

YOUNG MONTREAL
Young Montreal, who surprised the district world by his recent victory over Dushy Graham, has visions of winning the bantamweight title at a time when most fighters are through.

Dave's Dots And Dashes

We had a tough weekend on dope winning twice in five tries, but fighting spirit exhibited by the other teams upset our dose. We picked W. Green Bay to beat Fondy, 20-0, and this score came out exactly right. We picked Notre Dame to win 10-7, and though the score was incorrect, the Irish beat the Army. When we picked the Irish as winners we got the merry ha-ha around here as the Army absolutely looked like a sure winner. We played a hunch based on one Knute Rockne.

ROOSEVELT ELEVEN BEATS FOND DU LAC

Coach William Pickett's Roosevelt high school football team, 1926 Appleton junior high champions, had little trouble winning an utterly battle with the Roosevelt junior high of Fond du Lac Saturday morning at Whiting field. The much heavier Appleton lads plowed through their opponents for six touchdowns and a 33-0 victory. The Fondys were unable to make a single first down.

As the Fountain city school is the only junior high in Fond du Lac, the local boys won the junior high title of both cities and a strong claim to valley high honors. The Fond du Lac school has a much larger enrollment.

Appleton scored two markers in the first quarter and two kicks made the count, 14 to 0. After a scoreless second period, another touchdown came over in the third and two more in the final period. Goal was kicked after the third, period marker but the other two were missed. Lawrence Zimmerman starred for Appleton with three touchdowns. Norman Keip, Willard Peterson and Norbert Berg added the other three. The latter on an intercepted pass, and Berg kicked three extra points.

The lineup of the local squad: Smith and Douglas, ends; Buxton and Retz (capt.) tackles; Breitreich and Nohr, guards; Kiep, quarterback; Peterson, fullback; Berg and Zimmerman, halfbacks. Substitutes were Zilske for Smith, Foote for Nohr and Johnson for Douglas. Ole Jorgenson, coach of Neenah high school, refereed the game with Leonard Peterson umpiring.

John Cavosie, known as the best high school grider in the country last year and now a Badger frosh started the Ironwood school on its way. The city is the former home of Fred Tresize, Blue athletic manager. Leon C. High, a former teacher at Appleton high school and local faculty athletic manager, became principal of the school a year ago this fall at which time Ironwood started its great grid record.

The claims of Waukesha high school rank as high as Marquette to a state title, even if the Purple beats Superior and we can't see how that northerners can claim the title. Waukesha has the best eleven in its history and it is unbeaten this year. The same is true of Janesville, Big Six champs, who recently beat Racine, a team cleaned by Marquette 12-0, 21-0. Waukesha is claiming the state bunting.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, teaching at Pendleton University, finds students more congenial as friends than faculty members. ERIC WA-TERS, sophisticated senior, and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy
professor, are rivals for her favor.

MYRA ALDRICH, a junior, living at Judith's boarding house, hates Judith because of Eric's attentions to her.
Eric and Judith escape from a raid, when they are dining in a roadhouse, and Judith spends the night in a cabin, while Eric returns to town. Myra hears of the escape and tries to prejudice Dr.
Dorn by hinting of it to him.

Eric takes Judith to dinner at his fraternity house where WILL WETHEREL makes an embarrassing reference to the raid.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIII

It should have been a moment altogether painful. But Judith smiled light-heartedly at Will. The professor was looking at his plate.
The conversation was content to drop the reference to the roadhouse. "Pendleton is full of dangerous radicals," she said. "The young folk nowadays discard Christianity as soon as they get into college. I suppose it is the sciences that are to blame."

Dr. Dorn shook his head. "Where Science collides with Genesis, a rounder interpretation of Genesis will do the work. It certainly isn't necessary to discard the Christian principles of brotherly love and clean living just because geology and astronomy have told us something new about those seven days of the creation."

Eric held down his hand with a clatter. He was imperfectly veiling his disgust. "Brotherly love," he said,
"contradicts every law of survival.
And as for clean living—as you understand it—it means only half living."

There was a great silence over the table, until the song leader struck up one of the usual dinner table chanteys about "The Sweetheart of Sigma Psi."
Every fraternity man except Eric opened his mouth wide and sang. Judith began to wonder when the store of fraternity songs would run out and the guests be free to relax their faces from the wooden smile which they seemed bound to maintain during the singing.

"Damn silly childishness," muttered Eric. "Singing their own praises to tin-pan tunes, while the dinner guests wait for their desert."

The chapone rose after a bit, indicating that the meal was at an end.
Will Wetherel ran to Judith and caught her arm. "Come on, play the piano for us," he cried. Eric scowled, but Judith went with Will to the piano
in the living room.

A masculine crowd gathered round, and the wavy-haired youth sat on the floor with his head against the piano leg, and mooned at her, singing plaintively, a half tone out of tune.

Dr. Dorn had taken a chair nearby and watched her gravely. The other feminine guests had mobilized on a far davenport and were studiously not listening to the music.

Judith's fingers ran from Irving Berlin to Cadman and then to Debussy and Grieg. The crowd was very quiet.
The music was rudely interrupted.
Eric appeared out of nowhere and stalked to the piano. "Sorry to spoil this parlor recital," he said, "but Eve's party is waiting for us outside."

Eric took Judith to the staircase that led to the chapone's room. "You should have had your shoes changed on time, instead of playing the piano,"
he complained.

"Jealous infant," she tunted, as she ran upstairs.

The evening had been perfect. The men were jealous and the women envious.

"Where's Billy Boy?" called Eve from her post on the top step, as Eric and Judith came out of the house. Eve was leaning against a pillar, idly puffing at a cigaret. She was in brown tweeds, with a tan o' shanter cap on the side of her golden head.

"Here I am," yelled that young man, leaping through the doorway into the center of the group around Eve. He was carrying some sort of musical instrument under his arm.

"Well, if he isn't wearing the riding suit again," said Eric. "Expect to meet a horse tonight, Wetherel?"

Will ignored him. He was bending over to finish lacing his picturesque knee boots.

They set out southward toward the athletic field. Eve waiting between two swains at the head of the procession, and the others following in twos and threes. The night was clear and cold, with a black velvet, star-studded sky.

Eric walked moodily beside Judith.
She could hardly keep her feet from dancing. As last he broke the silence.

"You didn't think the admiration of those morons at the frat house meant anything, did you? Gad! Their sheep's eyes and their howlings around that piano. I felt ashamed for you."

Wetherel dropped back to walk with them, and Judith giggled to herself as Eric's breathing became shorter and angrier.

"I'm going to sing to you tonight, Judith," cried Will. "I've never sung to woman. And if you don't melt into the strains of my lute, I'll jump
off Lover's Leap in my despair."

"Excellent idea," said Eric. "You'll fall into Farmer Jones' pig pen at the foot of the cliff."

Wetherel and Judith laughed.
Eve and her companions had gone far ahead and the three lovers hurried to overtake them. They climbed to a hill that led to the precipice overlooking the broad meadow of the Little Coon river, and found Eve standing on a high table of rock at the summit.

"Hurry," she called. "The moon will be up in about five minutes.
They broke into a run. Eric ran alone, leaving Wetherel to aid Judith.
They brought up breathlessly beside the vanguard.

Below them, toward the east, the blackness was thick and limitless. Judith stepped a little farther from the edge, and shivered slightly. She glanced around the little circle, now strangely silent. Then she started.
"Will," she said, in a low tone, "there were ten of us when we started, and now there are eleven!"

"You counted wrong," said Will absently. He was taking his ukulele out of its case.

"There she comes," shouted someone, pointing eastward.

All eyes turned toward the moonrise. A faint red fan was spreading on the eastern horizon. Between it and the cliff the invisible meadow brooded and an invisible stream made little lapping noises audible to the party on the rock.

"The moon is a blood red lantern carried on a long stick by an old mandarin," said Wetherel, striking a chord.

"Shut up," snapped Eric, from across the circle.

But Wetherel continued to strum on the ukulele. The red disk climbed slowly to full view, and the meadow below filled with the pale reflection.

Wetherel stepped close to Judith.
"You and the moon," he whispered.
"Two gorgeous red-heads!"

He struck up a ringing accompaniment on the ukulele, droning the words in a shaky tenor.

"For heaven's sake, Will," protested Eve, "don't sing."

He gave her a hurt look. The rest of the party sat in silence, while the moon climbed up the arch of the eastern sky. Wetherel's minor strains died away.

There was a sharp noise as Eric sprang to his feet. "Well, where's the far-famed bottle Kitty was going to provide?" Someone handed him a bottle, and Eve called out, "Easy there, Eric. This party has a long walk home. Better keep your wits clear."

Eric laughed harshly. "I know how to take of myself." He was walking restlessly around the rock table.
Judith turned her back on him.

A moment later he stepped between her and Wetherel. "When are you going to stop mooning over that fop, and making a fool of me?" he demanded.

Judith answered sweetly, smiling up at him. "Make a fool of you? It can't be done. You've made a fool of yourself."

Eve was seated near the edge of the cliff, leaning her head against a tree stump. Her eyes followed the moon. "Lucky little planet that," she mused, to Judith. "All dead. No Judy," cried Will. "I've never sung to woman. And if you don't melt
into the strains of my lute, I'll jump
off Lover's Leap in my despair."

"Excellent idea," said Eric. "You'll
fall into Farmer Jones' pig pen at the foot of the cliff."

Wetherel and Judith laughed.

Here Is The Way To Test Value Of Children's Books

Some tests of the value of children's books are cited in the last of the series of articles on children's reading by Mrs. G. C. East published in honor of Children's Week from Nov. 7 to 13.

"There are so many lovely things for small children, we can mention only a few: Walter de la Mare's 'Old Dutch Cheese,' and 'The Brown Stick,' and Peacock Pie. Miss Elva Smith's Lullabies too should be mentioned."

"The last few decades have turned the minds of really good authors to writing for children. There is such a wealth of good juvenile reading above kindergarten age that we can scarcely tell where to begin and where to end. Miss Moore suggests these tests for children's books: (1) Try reading books aloud. Do they bore or delight you and why? (2) Insist on having well produced books.
Printed in clear type. Children remember just how their books look both inside and out. (3) If the book contains fairy tales new or old, are they written in a beautiful acceptable

English? (4) Was the book conceived for children or grown ups? (5) Is it sophisticated in language and allusion or simple? (6) Is the book true to the fact or the fancy it seeks to set forth? (7) If it is a book of plays, are they actable? (8) Boys' books must be read in active association with boys and girls' books with intimate knowledge of girls in order to appraise them properly and fairly. (9) Sequels and serials are to be tolerated only when the character and incident measure up to those of first books. (10) Fidelity to life and essential atmosphere are as indispensable in histories, bio-ographies, books of travel and adventure and realistic stories for children as are scientific accuracy and clear treatment to books of discovery and invention for grown-ups.

"Children's books should be written by artists who understand the importance of training children to an early appreciation of art by making their books attractive and significant in every detail. A living spark must fly out of them and find lodging in the train, the heart, the eye or the ear.

They should be so chosen that they will be alive and alight in the memory from four to seventy-four.

mond-st., who has been seriously ill

ONLY 200 PLACES LEFT FOR ANNUAL FARM-CITY DINNER

Tickets for Those Who Have Returned Invitations Are Mailed Monday

Only 200 more reservations will be made for the fourth annual farm dinner of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce to be held next Thursday evening, Nov. 18, at the First Methodist church dining room, Hugh G. Corbett, general secretary of the chamber, announced Monday.

Approximately 255 reservations already have been made, but arrangements have been completed to accommodate a few more than 550 persons, as originally planned.

Tickets for those who have returned their invitations to the chamber of commerce were mailed Monday morning, and every farmer should receive his by Tuesday. Tickets were mailed to everyone from whom reservations had been received up to Monday morning.

Those still planning to attend the dinner are urged to return their invitations at once, as it is necessary that the committee know several days beforehand exactly how many persons to prepare for, according to Mr. Corbett.

A talk especially interesting to farmers is promised by the rural affairs committee of the chamber, which has engaged Carl Schurz Vrooman as the principal speaker. Mr. Vrooman is a publicist, author and scientific farmer. He has written several books on agricultural problems, and was assistant secretary of agriculture under the Wilson administration.

In order to facilitate the task of making reservations for the dinner, a special reservation blank is printed below. Rural persons may fill out this blank according to directions and mail it to the chamber of commerce office.

LAW LIMITS HELP GIVEN TO BLIND

Board of Control May Not Buy Machinery to Manufacture Rugs

Madison — (AP)—The state board of control may not purchase material and machinery for the manufacture of rugs in the Wisconsin workshop for the blind according to an opinion by Michael J. Dunn, assistant attorney general, made public Monday.

Members of the state board of control, wishing to add rug manufacture to the willow ware and basketry industry carried on by the blind, asked whether the materials for the making of rugs could be purchased.

"Under the statutes," the opinion said, "your board is authorized to furnish blind artisans availing themselves of the privilege of the institute, a limited amount of materials and tools required in their employments."

The statute controlling the appropriation "specifically enumerates the purposes to which the appropriation shall be devoted," the assistant attorney general said. Another section directs the investment of the appropriation in materials, payment of artisans and for expenses incident to the manufacture and sale of basketry and willow ware.

"Nothing being said by the statute on rugs, their employment and manufacture, you are advised that your board is not at liberty to make the purchases," concluded the opinion.

Marriage Licenses
The following applications for marriage licenses were filed with County Clerk John E. Hantschel on Friday afternoon: Martin E. Leubke to wed Selma Wolff, both of Appleton; John F. Behling to wed Mrs. Harriet Janzen, both of rural route 7, Appleton.

Thousands are talking about it!

If you have a friend suffering with eczema or other itching, burning eruption, what greater kindness could you do him than to say:

"Why don't you try Resinol? I know you have experimented with a dozen treatments, but Resinol is different. It is simply a soothing, healing ointment, free from all harsh drugs, and physicians prescribe it widely in just such cases as yours. Do get a jar from your druggist today! You will be astonished to see how quickly the itching and soreness is relieved and the healing begins."

GOVERNMENT WANTS ASSAULT CASE PUT IN FEDERAL COURT

Seek Another Adjournment in Case Against Prohibition Raider

Seeking time in which to transfer the case to the federal courts and introduce an investigation by the department of justice, a two weeks adjournment is being asked by the United States district attorney in the arrest of J. C. Graham, Cleveland, O., charged with assault while armed.

More than three weeks ago Mr. Graham, it is alleged, was one of three federal prohibition enforcement agents, who intimidated a soft drink saloon bartender and several customers while a raid was in progress.

It was declared by the complaining witness that the federal agents displayed guns and ordered customers and bartenders to "throw up their hands."

The two companions of Graham were not arrested by Sheriff Peter G. Schwartz but they are named in the warrant and it is believed probable that the proposed federal action will involve them.

District Attorney John A. Lonsdorf said Monday that no objection will be interposed by his office to the request of the government attorney.

WANT CHILDREN TO MAKE DOLLS FOR JAP FESTIVAL

"To promote understanding and good will between the children of America and Japan" is the purpose of the "Doll Messenger" plan suggested to the Appleton public schools by a national committee located in New York. American children have been asked to send thousands of dolls to Japan for the doll festival as "guests bearing messages of friendship."

The plan will be investigated by Miss Magdalena Kohl, principal of Washington school, and if adopted, the project will be undertaken by the pupils of the fifth and sixth grades, it was said.

Mrs. A. E. Kaiser and son Erwin and daughter Susan of Green Bay will arrive in Appleton Saturday to spend the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Grunert.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall Factory, Trenton, N. J., says she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. adv.
